Halibut Landings Quite Heavy During Past Week—New Aids to Navigation at Pacofi—Much Fish Landed at Seattle

With quite a number of the larger vessels of the Canadian fleet landing catches prior to making their final trips of the season to the banks, halibut arrivals at Prince Rupert during the past week were fairly heavy at a total of 715,500 pounds. Of the week's total of landings 156,000 pounds was from Canadian vessels and 559,500 from American.

This brings the season's aggregate landings at Prince Rupert so far up to 12,108,550 pounds as compared with 12,568,350 pounds at a corresponding date last year. The Canadian landings so far this year amount to 5,602,650 pounds and American 6,505,900 pounds as against 6,281,350 pounds and 6,287,000 pounds respectively last year. During the week came announcement that fishing on the banks of Area No. 3 would be permissible until October 29 which is ten days later than last year. Prices for fish held steady during the week with the top bid of the week for Canadian halibut 8.3c and 5c paid the Gulvik for 21,000 pounds and the low 7c and 5c received by the Joe Baker for 2,000 pounds. For American fish the highest price of the week was 9.9c and 6c paid the Bonanza for 24,500 pounds and the low 7c and 5c which the Argo received for 20,000 pounds. Several of the Prince Rupert halibut vessels have been continuing cod fishing in Area No. 2, bringing in small amounts of halibut incidental thereto.

On her way from Queen Charlotte Island loading camps to the Powell River mill with a tow of logs which she left at Captain's Cove the Powell River tug St. Faith was in port yesterday morning for fuel and supplies.

A white buoy with red light on Amur Rock, a red buoy with red light on the northeast extreme of Locke shoal, a white beacon on the point opposite this red buoy, a red buoy with red light on the south-east ledge of Locke shoal, a black buoy with white light on the south-west extreme of Locke shoal and a red spar buoy about 200 feet north-west of the outer end of the wharf have been placed in Selwyn Inlet, Queen Charlotte Islands, to mark the channel leading to the wharf at Pacofi, it is announced. These aids to navigation will be maintained by the British Columbia Packers.

George Davidson, chief engineer of the steamer Prince Charles, and assistant engineers, R. P. Williams, F. C. Salter and R. F. C. Baldry, sailed Thursday night on the Prince George for Vancouver as did also Purser Arnold Evans. The Prince Charles has been tied up in drydock here for the winter.

The Ketchikan freighter Tongass arrived in port at 10 o'clock Thursday night and, after discharging five carloads of fisheries products for transshipment east over Canadian National Railways, sailed at 5 o'clock yesterday morning for Seattle.

Seattle Halibut Landings
Halibut landings at the port of Seattle for the month of September this year totalled 2,469,000 pounds at an estimated total value of slightly less than $250,000. The total represented 130 trips and the average price was 10 1/2c per pound. The landings at Seattle this September were some 331,000 pounds than 2,138,000 pounds in the same month a year ago when the total value was $332,000. The price average this September was 3/4c per pound less than a year ago. Yesterday at Seattle only four small catches of halibut, taken incidental to cod fishing, were landed, the total being 3450 pounds and the price ranging from 10 1/4c to 19c.

OLDEST ON NAAS RIVER

Frank Bolton, Head of Naas Nation, Dies at Age of Ninety

The death occurred on Thursday at Kincolith of Frank Bolton, (Thalakhat), head chief of the Eagle Tribe of the Nishga nation. Deceased was the oldest living native on the Naas River, being well over 90 years of age.

He was in good health until a week ago when he was stricken, while at Quinamass at his camp where he went every fall to smoke salmon. He also fished for Arrandale Cannery this season, holding his own with the best of them.

Bolton's death removes one of the real old timers, he being the only remaining man who years ago left the heathen villages and took up Christianity, moving from Kidix, on the upper Naas, where his totem still stands, to Kincolith, the first Christian village.

A party of fellow tribesmen were in town yesterday getting supplies for the funeral and feast which will be an elaborate affair. His grandson, R. S. Woods of this city, left today aboard the fisheries patrol boat Metra to be able to attend the funeral on Monday.

BUCS STILL HAVE HOPES

Broke Even With Cincinnati In Double-Header While Cubs And Cards Play to 7 All Count

CINCINNATI, Oct. 1: (CP)—One-and-a-half games still separates the leading Chicago Cubs in the National League from the second place Pittsburgh Pirates who still have a chance to finish up on top. The Pirates appeared sunk when they lost the first game of a double-header to the Cincinnati Reds here yesterday but came back to take the second and still remain in the race. The Cubs were lucky to pull up even with the St. Louis Cardinals who had been leading them 6 to 1, the game being called at the end of the ninth inning on account of darkness with the count seven-all.

Yesterday's Big League scores:

National League
Pittsburg, 1-4; Cincinnati, 7-2; Chicago, 7; St. Louis, 7 (called at the end of the ninth inning on account of darkness).
Philadelphia-New York, cancelled on account of rain.
American League
St. Louis, 5-3; Chicago, 7-3 (second game called at the end of the eighth inning on account of darkness).
Washington - Boston, postponed on account of rain.

Man in the Moon

Next week is parent-teacher week and also fish week. Evidently the fishing industry will be urging parents and teachers to help secure the consumption of more fish.

Jake says he thinks there is something fishy about the combination.

Office Boy—Your wife came in to see you this morning, sir, but I knew you were busy so I managed to get her out of the office.

Boss—Hm! Where did you get that much money?

Salesman—This fire-fighting apparatus will be in use in 50 years' time.

Elderly lady—But in 50 years' time I shall not be here.

Saleman (misunderstanding)—But madam, it is so light and convenient you could carry it anywhere you go.

If all men were like William Hurwitz, of Ipswich, Massachusetts, manufacturers of sleeping trugs would go out of business, for Hurwitz's car ran off the road, mowed down 50 feet of fence, knocked over nine cement posts and crashed against a telegraph pole.

Hurtwitz slept through it all. A passing motorist woke him up.

"Gosh! I'm a sound sleeper!" was all Hurtwitz said.

The game was very one-sided. Just after half-time the captain of the losing team approached the referee. "I say, can we have another ball?"

"What do you want another ball for?" the astonished referee asked.

"Well," grumbled the captain, "those chaps want that one all to themselves."

As she entered the fashionable milliner's shop the manageress stepped forward to serve her.

"I see by your advertisements," the girl said, "that you have received 2,000 hats from Paris."

"Yes, madam," the manageress informed her.

"Good," the girl exclaimed, as she removed her hat. "I wish to try them on."

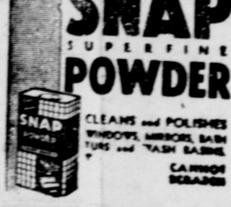

Briggs: "You're looking blue, old boy. What's wrong?"

Thompson: "Oh my wife has gone into hospital, my son lost his job yesterday, my daughter has mumps, cook has left us and to crown it all Jenkins beat me 5 and 4 this afternoon."
