to find the Conservative party more radical than the Liberal government. Ever since Confederation the Liberals have been regarded as the more radical. Before the turn of the century when it was considered a sign of weakness for a fighting party man to call the opposing party by its duly adopted name, Liberals were often dubbed 'Rads." Even in Laurier's time his supporters were referred to as "reformers" in the back concessions more often than as Liberals.

While Conservative government at times have done things which might be considered radical, it is contended the people of Canada regard the party as above suspicion in regard to radicalism and manfrom the back concessions and even from the urban centres, who have, been taught from their cradles that a Conservative party should that way. Every constituency of he 245 in Canada has delegates, all of whom have pretty decided views on the matter.

Coercion a Necessity

Conservatives have stood for state direction while the Liberals ave emphasized the rights of the individual. "Non Stop New York" and "Back in Circulation" at Capitol Theatre

"Non-Stop New York," a British picture telling an anticipatory tale of transAtlantic air service, and "Back in Circulation," an engrossing newspaper drama, comprise a double bill program being presented this midweek at the Capitol Theatre.

"Non Stop New York," starring Anna Lee and John Loder, deals with romance and adventure aboard a transAtlantic passenger plane of the future, flying a one-day service between London and New York. The plane used in the picture is modelled after one of the huge clipper Halibut landings from Area No. planes such as are to be used in be conservative, want to keep it 2 for the present year up to the the new Atlantic service.
