HARD WORDS FOR WOMEN

New York Stock Exchange Head Can't See Why They Take Jobs

NEW YORK, July 27: (CP) — William McChesney Martin Jr., 31-year old president of the New York Stock Exchange and a "regretful" bachelor, sat down in his guarded air-conditioned office hunched his knees against the desk and confessed to a weakness for the simple life. First paid president of the Exchange, he gets $48,000 a year for it.

"I haven't any expensive habits," he said. (He neither smokes nor drinks; doesn't keep a car in New York). "I like to go to the theatre but I go by myself and usually sit in the balcony. I used to play tennis three or four times a week at Forest Hills. Lately I've been too busy."

Rich girls disturb him. "Barbara Hutton," he says, "has done more to destroy American capitalism than any other individual." That's pretty heated for anyone as gentle as Mr. Martin. He gets cross, too, about rich girls who take jobs as they can say they're earning money.

A fiend for work, Mr. Martin doesn't act like a go-getter. He moves slowly, speaks slowly, smiles often—but slowly. His clothes are commonplace. Social life doesn't interest him but he's being asked around quite a bit, now that he's in the limelight. He says he would like to travel every day of his life.

Dance Wore Him Down
Last March he went on a Mediterranean cruise. He had been putting in 20-hour work days helping draft the Exchange's new constitution, he said, so, after it was over he went aboard ship and spent the first three days sleeping.

"I didn't speak to anybody for seven days," he reflected. "I ate at a table by myself. I was pretty sick of talking to people by then. One night toward the end of the cruise, I asked a girl to dance then couldn't get away until 1:30. I was completely worn out." It was his second trip abroad. In 1927 after his junior year at Yale, he went on a European tour.

Mr. Martin has never come to consider New York home, though he's been here seven years now—ever since he purchased a membership in the Stock Exchange. He lives at the Yale Club, because he likes to think he's here only temporarily. St. Louis is his home but he doesn't get there more than once a month.

The son of well-to-do parents—his father is president of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis—Mr. Martin says he gives most of his money away.

He gets annoyed with people who accuse him of straddling the fence. Though he tries to be unemotional in his analysis of economic trends, he says that doesn't prevent him from having convictions of his own.

Only half the age of most of the past leaders of the Exchange, Martin is in office "as long as the board wants me."

Alaska points whence she will return here next Monday southbound. The vessel had a capacity list of tourist passengers.

Six halibut vessels sold catches totalling 170,000 pounds at Seattle yesterday as follows: Columbia, 39,000 pounds, 8c and 7½c; Allen, 40,000 pounds, McCallum, 8¼c and 7½c; Eagle, 40,000, Sebastian, 8¼c and 7½c; Bernice, 18,000, Whiz, 8½c and 7½c; Wireless, 16,000, Booth, 8½c and 7½c; Irene J., 16,500, Ripley, 8¼c and 7½c. Red and ling cod sold for 3c.

Capt. Charles Ness has relinquished command of the Seattle halibut schooner Venture to Capt. L. R. Metz, Capt. Ness, who was married in June, is to take a honeymoon trip.

The power yacht Merrily of Seattle, in the course of a cruise to Alaska with Arthur H. Kinnan, its owner, and party of four on board was an overnight visitor to port, arriving yesterday afternoon from the south and proceeding this morning to Ketchikan.

C. P. R. steamer Princess Louise Capt. S. K. Gray, southbound from Skagway to Vancouver with a capacity list of passengers, is due from the north at 3:30 this afternoon and will sail at 5 p.m.

DRAMA IS POWERFUL

"Crime School" Is Feature Offering At Capitol Theatre For Middle Of Week

Sometimes amusing and sometimes tragic but always exciting, "Crime School," opening at the Capitol Theatre tonight as the mid-week feature presentation, contains an indictment of brutal outwitted methods in dealing with juvenile crime.

The story is that of the determined fight of an idealistic young official to introduce his ideas into a reformatory of the old type. Six boys are the storm centre around which the fight rages. Humphrey Bogart, playing his first hero role is the idealistic commissioner, doing his part with sympathetic understanding, vigor and aggressiveness.

Remarkably true to life performances are said to be given by the six boys who are the same boys who became famous in both stage and screen versions of "Dead End." Bobby Jordan is the leader of these boys.

The romantic interest is provided by Gale Page, a beautiful newcomer to the screen from radio.

ESCAPE
By a Traveller Who Ran Into a Nest of Snakes and Fled

"I started early—about four in the morning—and climbed steadily higher up the mountains, just out of Yale.

"About nine o'clock I had reached the pass between two peaks so decided to lie down and rest through the hottest hours of the day for I was about half-way to my destination.

"I must have dozed off then. Awakening with a start, I found that the blazing sun was high overhead and the mountain air motionless in the noonday heat. Just a few feet away from me there was a languid movement—a snake—huge reptile, coiled lazily on the rock, sunning itself! There was another and another—a dozen of them! And on the ledge above me lay another of the slinky fellows, eyeing me in silence. One more slithered out and coiled up in the sunshine nearby.

"I looked wildly about for an avenue of escape but a huge reptile made desultory movements along the trail which I had climbed. There was just one way out—a long sheer drop to a switch-back below. Desperately I jumped and landed on a pile of small rocks. The miracle was that I didn't break both legs. The hard landing had shaken me up quite a bit but I ran wildly down the crude trail, stumbling at times, picking myself up and racing on.

"It was three miles to an isolated prospector's cabin which I had passed on my way up but I ran all the way. Not waiting to knock I burst in—"Snakes!" I gasped to the old man. "Hundreds of snakes up on the mountain. I jumped over a cliff and—"

"He looked at the terrified expression on my face and laughed until he was doubled over. "Snakes?" he spluttered, between ruffaws, "why them's bull snakes. Harmless!"

"And did I feel silly!"—Anna May Ullman, Hazelton.
