RUSSIA AND JAPAN

Writing in a leading United States magazine Demaree Bass, who has spent a good many years as a newspaper correspondent at Moscow, says that the war between Russia and Japan started in 1926 and is still going on. At first it was not only an undeclared war but a concealed war. It began immediately it was announced that there was a line-up between Japan and Germany but was delayed a great deal by the necessity for the huge purge in Russia in which many thousands of prominent people lost their lives. Among those who suffered were about half of the foremost leaders in the army and a good two-thirds of the cabinet ministers.

The first work under the war plan was the double-tracking of the trans-Siberian railway on which hundreds of thousands of prisoners worked under police guards.

Then came the increasing of the agricultural product of Eastern Siberia by transporting prisoners and others and settling them on Siberian lands. These farmers can sustain a great army without imports from European Russia.

New armament factories have been erected, including modern aircraft factories in order to provide an independent supply of munitions.

This far eastern army has provided aviators and tank drivers for the Chinese national army and also instructors for the Soviet military training centres. Besides that it has made it necessary for Japan to keep an army in Korea and Manchuria. The Soviet training centres are located in Outer Mongolia and Tsinkiang and they provide the bases for new military units organized to carry on guerrilla warfare against the Japanese. Some of these operate in the region nominally now under control of Japan. The troops are not only trained by Russians but also are equipped with Russian arms and use Russian ammunition.

The troops trained by Russia are thoroughly loyal to Russia whereas native troops trained by Japan have been proved to be wholly unreliable and cannot be depended upon in any serious fighting.

The writer of the article suggests that the alliance of Japan with Germany and Italy was one of those monumental blunders to which the Japanese have been prone. He also quotes Mao-Tse Tung, Chinese Communist general, that the objective of this undeclared war is to wage it until the Japanese are pushed out of Manchuria, out of Inner Mongolia, out of China and their hold even on Korea and Formosa may be threatened.

From the news coming over the cables the last few days it would seem as if the war was no longer concealed and possibly the drive is already in progress.

SEAL COVE IS WINNER

In the interplayground doll contest held yesterday at the gymnasium, Seal Cove playground came out on top with three firsts out of the five, as follows:

Best Dressed—Peggy Barclay.

Largest—Betty Scott.

Smallest—Christine Petersen.

The prettiest doll of the contest was entered by Nina Youngman from Acropolis Playground and the funniest came from McClymont.

entered by Audrey Grindle. Judges were Mrs. George Rorie and Mrs. R. Lloyd-Jones.

After the judging a short program was provided by the playground children as follows:

Elsie Kraupner and Gilda Campanola, song; Joy Berg, recitation; Gracie Soles, song; Elsie Kraupner, tap dance; Eve Adams, song; and Tommy Krause and Isobel Gay, Highland fling.

Seal Cove is now the leading playground as regards the winning of the interplayground competitions, having also won the sand box contest. There are, however, two more

Acropolis Hill Softballers Take Series of Three Games

In the fifth and last game of the senior boys basketball league played last night at the Exhibition Building, McClymont Park won a close victory over Acropolis as the league now stands with Seal Cove and Westview definitely the leaders. McClymont, however, still has a mathematical chance of winning the league.

Last night the game was opened very slowly and progressed for several minutes without so much as an attempted shot. Then Smith opened up with some very neat and fast combination with Mentzenko and scored for Acropolis. Santander immediately dropped one for Acropolis after a long dribble up the floor and the score remained 4 to 4 almost until the last of the half when Santander, Zouma and Simundson brought McClymont's score up twelve for the end of the first half.

In the second half of the game O'Neill opened the scoring again after a long dribble but Smith and Mentzenko found McClymont's guard in the person of Bill Barker too much for them as time and time again he foiled their shots and stole the ball. At two minutes to go the score was 17 all when Hangan stole the ball with a lovely long shot from the sideline. As the game finished the score was 21 to 18 in favor of McClymont. Their teams:

McClymont—Simundson 4, Zouma 4, Bill Scherk, McDonald, Barker, Hangan 5.

Acropolis—Smith 11, Mentzenko 2, Anton 2, Brass, O'Neill 4, Schneider, Magnet.

Defense was Neil Ross and scorekeeper, Dominic Montesano.

There's no doubt about it—it takes skill to pitch a horse shoe so that it neither slides nor rolls, but thuds to earth for a "ringer", a "leaner" or a fairly won point.

There's no doubt about Old Chum, either—not among pipe smokers who know good tobacco. Old Chum's soothing fragrance and sweet Virginia aroma have made it the favorite tobacco of smokers of every age for over half a century.

Try a package. You'll agree with all Old Chum smokers that:

There is no other tobacco just like Old Chum!

Editor, Daily News:

In answer to your question "Why has the Liberal Party in Britain and the Conservative in Canada apparently lost out?"

In regard to the latter assumption, the political changes in Canada are very complete at times. A party is apparently out of office indefinitely and in a few years comes to the top again. This has happened to the Liberal party in itself. In 1935 there was only one Liberal government in Canada—Quebec—since defeated.

The Ottawa government and British Columbia, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and Saskatchewan were all Conservative. Alberta and Manitoba were Farmer party. Liberals in Quebec only—one in ten. This will swing back again.
