From the Waterfront

It is reported here, although not as yet confirmed, that the American pharmaceutical firm of Parke-Davis Co. has agreed to pay the same price for halibut liver to the Pacific fishing fleet as prevailed last year. Some time ago a reduction from last year's price was offered the fleet but they declined to accept. Negotiations have been in progress in Seattle for an increase back to last year's price and these, according to the report here, have met with success. New negotiations for the disposal of viscera are also in progress. It is reported, along cooperative lines.

Union steamer Catala, Capt. James Findlay, returned to port at 9 o'clock this morning from Stewart, Anyox and other northern points and sailed at 1:30 p.m. for Vancouver and waypoints.

LITTLE BANKERS AND BIG BANKS

(A true story)

Bunny's father gets his pay cheque twice monthly, and Bunny's mother deposits it in one of the branches of The Royal Bank. Along with his mother trots four-year-old Bunny with a little iron bank tucked under his arm, into which he carefully put his savings.

While his mother is waiting for her book the bank manager lifts Bunny on to the counter, opens his bank, and counts his money, and then enters the amount in Bunny's savings bank book.

To Bunny these semi-monthly visits are but pleasant interludes in the active days of childhood; but to his father they have deep significance, for he sees, in the light of his own mature experience, the cultivation of a habit of thrift that will prove of great value to the boy as the years go on.

Want to Know Why You're Constipated?

Would you give a million to shake off that dull, dopey, played-out feeling that often comes with common constipation? Then stop a minute and think. What have you had to eat this week? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? Probably the reason you're constipated is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't entirely consumed, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines which helps a bowel movement. What to do? Eat some Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. This crunchy-tasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains both the intestinal tonic vitamin B₁ and iron. Eat All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. See if you don't get off your heels and on your toes! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Clarence Darrow Chose Criminal Defense Work Over Being Corporation Counsel

Many Noted Cases

Defended Eugene Debs, McNamara Brothers, "Big Bill" Haywood, Leopold and Loeb

CHICAGO, March 15: (AP)—Clarence Darrow, who is dead here, at the age of 37, walked out as general counsel for a great railroad and assumed the role the world knew best: attorney for the defense.

This was in 1894—the year of the American Railway Union strike, headed by Eugene V. Debs, socialist leader. A federal court injunction against the union activities had been granted upon petition of the railroads, and Debs had been indicted for conspiracy.

Darrow sympathized with the strikers. His views—political and social—were to the left. He felt embarrassed over the incompatibility of these views with his position as general counsel for the Chicago & Northwestern system, many of whose workers participated in the strike. When Debs persuaded the young corporation lawyer to conduct his defense, Darrow resigned his railway job.

The government dismissed the criminal conspiracy charge against Debs.

"The decision to defend Debs," Darrow once said, "led me away from the world of wealth to that of wretchedness and misery. For making it, I've had no regrets."

It was a decision that brought to the soft-voiced, twinkle-eyed humanitarian many renowned victories in the defense of his social views and theories.

Darrow hated capital punishment. In an inflamed Chicago, amid the clamor for the lives of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, he pleaded for a time "when hatred and cruelty will not control the hearts of men" and gained sentences of life imprisonment for the kidnapers and slayers of Bobby Franks.

Defends Freedom of Thought

Darrow strove for freedom of thought. Against William Jennings Bryan when "the commoner" was a peccol prosecutor upholding fundamentalism, Darrow defended evolution in the John T. Scopes "monkey trial" at Dayton, Tennessee. The Dayton high school science teacher was found guilty of violating the anti-Darwinian laws of Tennessee, but the state's supreme court reversed the verdict.

Darrow was an agnostic. He regarded Christ as an ancient philosopher and benefactor and was an earnest pleader for the Christian virtues of mercy and charity. In his writings and appeals to juries he frequently spoke of qualities given by God. By this usage of the name of divinity he meant the forces that motivate man. The existence of such forces he readily admitted.

Darrow crusaded for the cause of labor. Few men were so unflinching. He won freedom for "Big Bill" Haywood—then a socialist, later the molder of the I.W.W.—who, with other members of the onetime militant Western Federation of Miners, was tried for the murder of Former Gov. Frank Steunenberg, of Idaho, during a strike. William E. Borah was a special prosecutor.

Samuel Gompers sent Darrow to the defense of the McNamara brothers, charged with murder in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building in 1911. Darrow succeeded in settling the case on the basis of prison terms.

In his seventy-fifth year, Darrow abandoned retirement and, against the advice of friends and physicians, journeyed to Alabama to offer his services to the negro youths in the Scottsboro case. The International Labor Defense, under the dominance of communists, had entered the trial. It insisted that Darrow and his associate in many cases, Arthur Garfield Hays, abide by its decisions as to conduct. Darrow refused to do so, thinking the I.L.D. was using the trial for propaganda purposes.

The next year, he was again the focus of the limelight, guiding the defense in the Hawaiian Massie case.

Darrow, always interested in the sociological aspects of political issues, took part in many campaigns as an independent democrat. But he held only one elective office. In 1902 he was elected to the Illinois House of Representatives, serving a single term. The following year he declined a labor party nomination for the mayoralty of Chicago.

While his greatest reputation was gained in the criminal courts, he also was an expert in corporation law. In politics he denounced "big interests" and one of his notable civil suits was litigation against the Chicago "gas trust" which resulted in a substantial lowering of rates.

Boyhood on Farm

Darrow was born in Ohio in 1857 and spent his boyhood on a farm. He was admitted to the bar when only eighteen and opened his first law office at Ashtabula, Ohio. His first wife was Miss Jessie Ohi of Ashtabula whom he married in 1879 and divorced eighteen years later. There was one son by this marriage, Paul. In 1905 the attorney married again, Miss Ruby Gamberstrom, a Chicago news reporter.
