threatens to rob them sooner or later of the support he owes them. Remembering all these facts can you honestly find this man "not guilty" of the charge against him-that his loss of efficiency is due to ill-health? That is what you must decide.

(The jury then retired for ten minutes.) FOREMAN OF JURY: My lord. The jury agree in finding the prisoner guilty. JUDGE: Prisoner, in this court we do not punish: we reform. And serious as your charge is, you will be allowed to go back to your home on probation, on the understanding that you keep yourself out of this trouble in future. PRISONER: My lord, how is that possible? I get no chance of proper exercise. I won't have a holiday for months. I'm sitting in a stuffy office all day long,
