AFTER PIRATES

With orders to "sink on sight" any submarine found submerged or near the trade routes, the advance ship of one of Great Britain's destroyer flotillas is shown (above), splashing through the Mediterranean. The order was the result of attacks on British shipping off the coast of embattled Spain by "pirate" submarines.

"Why, all those things I'm supposed to have said about women, and all that has been written about my private life is just synthetic bunk! It must be, because I never talk about women or my private life."

Eddy, making a personal appearance in Winnipeg, is shy of mounties. "I would like to see them here," he said, "but I don't know. Those fellows kind of scare me. They might just look at me and say: 'Oh, so you're the guy who thinks he's a mountie.'" Eddy played the part of a mountie in the picture "Rose Marie."

Seriously speaking, the singer said he has the greatest admiration for the force and for the mounties he had met and who had directed him in "Rose Marie."

Eddy is keenly interested in paintings, sculptures, antiques and deep-sea life.

NURSES ARE GRADUATED

Ceremonies in Connection With Completion of Their Courses by Six Students Are Impressive

Before a large and interested congregation, graduation exercises for six student nurses who complete their three-year courses this year at the Prince Rupert General Hospital training school for nurses were held last night in First Presbyterian Church followed by a reception in the Oddfellows' Hall. The graduates are the Misses Elizabeth L. Cameron, Ida Kathleen Giraud, Elizabeth S. McCubbin, Mary A. Molloy, Lillian A. Moss and Margaret A. Pallant. The class is the final one that will be graduated from the local training school for the time being at least since no new students have been admitted during the last couple of years.

The graduation ceremonies last night were of the usual impressive nature. The church had been attractively decorated for the occasion, the chancel with spring flowers and foliage.

After the lady superintendent, Miss Jean Harrison R.N., the president of the board and others who were to take part in the ceremonies had taken their places, the members of the nursing staff passed up the aisle to their seats followed by the six graduates who, in their new white uniforms and each carrying beautiful bouquets, were greeted with the applause of the congregation. Mrs. E. J. Smith presided at the organ.

Very Rev. James B. Gibson, dean of St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral, gave the opening prayer after which there were brief remarks by G. P. Tinker, the president of the board, who spoke appreciatively of the interest which was manifested by such a large turn-out and, on behalf of the hospital association and board, expressed best wishes to the new graduates.

Address to Graduates
The address to the graduating class was given by Arthur Sutton, principal of King Edward High School whose discourse was appropriate and befitting the occasion. "The profession which you have entered," said Mr. Sutton, "presents a great challenge. Are you ready to meet it?" The profession of nursing was a comparatively young one, continued the speaker, but it already had its high traditions built up by the high standard of its personnel. It was a calling that required much of those who entered it. Personality and character were essential. Mr. Sutton emphasized the desirability of democratic service especially in nursing. The nurse must minister to rich and poor alike with the same conscientiousness and devotion. Monetary reward must be a secondary consideration. The nature of the work was such that the nurse could not always measure her duty to set hours or times. She must be prepared to meet all sorts of conditions, often conditions which were not pleasant. She must exercise cheerfulness, courage, tact, judgment, mental understanding, dependability, sincerity, punctuality, friendliness, patience and resourcefulness. Rewards would come in self-realization and the satisfaction of a fine service rendered to humanity.

The nurse, said Mr. Sutton in concluding, should keep interests other than those of her profession awake but, he exhorted, "let nothing ever come between you and your service in which you will find your satisfaction and your reward."

The address was followed by the investing of class medals on the graduates by the lady superintendent and the presentation of diplomas by the president of the board, each of the young ladies receiving a round of applause.

Closing prayer was by Dean Gibson.

The program had also included vocal solos by Dr. R. G. Large, accompanied by Mrs. E. J. Smith, and violin solos by A. C. Cameron accompanied by Dr. H. N. Brocklesby. Ushers were S. J. Hunter, George Dibb and Earl Gordon.

Many at Reception

After the church ceremonies, a large number repaired to the reception at the Oddfellows' Hall where congratulations were personally extended to the new nurses. Delicious refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed with music by George Brown's Orchestra.

VARIETY SHOW AT CATHEDRAL

Capacity of Hall Taxed On Friday Night For Entertainment Staged By Anglican Young People

The capacity of St. Andrew's Cathedral Hall was taxed to accommodate the large crowd which attended a variety entertainment staged on Friday night by the Anglican Young People's Association. The program, which included two playlets, musical numbers and a comic fashion show, proved highly enjoyable to all present.

The first one-act play was entitled "The Jewelled Hand" and the cast included Miss Phyllis Taylor, Peter Allen, Miss Ruth Nelson, Miss Jean McLean, Miss Betty Ellison, Alfred Rivett and Harold Ponder Jr. "Out of the Darkness" was the title of the second short play and taking part in it were Robert Yerburgh, Jack Storrie and Richard Keenleyside. Other items on the program included vocal solos by Miss Betty Ellison, accompanied by Miss Marybelle Stiles, piano duets by the Misses Ruth Nelson and Jean McLean and tap dancing by Miss Phyllis Taylor.

The fashion show was directed by Miss Phyllis Taylor and all members of the Association participated. It was both comical and novel.

Following the entertainment there was a social for members of the Association and those who had taken part, refreshments being served.
