MOST OF 117 PERSONS WHO WERE IN HOSTELRY ARE STILL UNACCOUNTED-SOME KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN SERIOUSLY INJURED

HALIFAX, March 2: (CP)—More than a score of persons were listed missing and believed dead after a holocaust which devoured the old Queen Hotel and gnawed a huge chunk out of Halifax's close built business section, causing damage estimated at $800,000. The exact toll of deaths and injuries is not yet estimated. Two bodies have been recovered and only fortyeight others of 117 persons who were in the big frame hostel have been accounted for. Of the 48 rescued and accounted for twenty are in hospital, some seriously hurt. Police said the death toll might reach as high as thirty.

Jack Rutter Tells Magistrate of At-tack by Nick Sulikoski in Room-

Intent Statement Features Evidence

Accused Purported to Said Shooting Should Have Taken Place Years Ago

Evidence of how Nick Sulikoski, 38-year-old laborer, had entered the kitchen of the Westholme rooming house here on February 15 armed with a newly purchased rifle aimed the weapon at his wife, was intercepted by Jack Rutter, a railway locomotive engineer, causing the bullet to be discharged into the ceiling after which, in the course of a struggle, Sulikoski seizbread knife with which he slashed Rutter around the eyes before the melee was broken up by police officers was given at the preliminary hearing of Sulikoski yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Inomas McClymont on a charge of attempted murder. Evidence was also given as to how Sulikoski, after being placed under arrest and duly warned, had declared that "I told of having purchased the Westholme Rooms five or six years ago. By mutual arrangement, Mrs. Sulikoski had obtained half interest. She worked hard and get no fixed wages. If she was able to make anything she kept it. If she ran short, witness helped her out. He had known Sulkoski and his wife for pretty close to ten years. He had visited them at their home on Eleventh Street. Rutter said that he had a wife and family consisting of three boys and a girl in Sarnia, Ontario.

In answer to a question by Sergeant Jacklin Rutter said he had weeks following the affair and was DAWSON IS
