PROPAGANDA

Practically every country is engaged today in a certain amount vertising her tourist attractions through the department handling the state railways and is sending out propaganda in many other ways. Japan is putting out newspaper and other propaganda. Italy is also sending out "information" which is largely prop-"Italy Today" tells aganda. about the method of government which has been adopted by that country and which is now in force. Under it all problems of production and distribution are regulated by the government through the corporations. Producers are brought within the framework of the state, steering a middle course between the unbridled individualism of the nineteenth century and the "deadening bureaucracy of the collectivist state." Social peace is the aim as well as more and better production. Disputes between capital and labor are settled by due process of law just as are disputes between individuals. That is certainly a step ahead of our system under which groups of individuals take the law into their own hands and so do employers and the outcome is a question of strength and not

They regulate vocational training and the conditions of apprenticeship in each trade, contribute to the relief of unemployment and also organize labor exchang-

The corporations also co-ordinate and rationalize production. Private enterprise is shown how it can best work for its own and the common good. A representative of each corporation is chosen by the corporation to sit with other governmental bodies.

It will be very interesting to those who study things to watch the development of this new form of administration in Italy. If it proves a success over a term of years it will undoubtedly spread to many other countries. In that country it must be remembered that all governmental activities are regulated from above, just as they are in Russia. In both countries the systems look all right on paper but they are not yet what they would seem to be. According to reports that come through from visitors, strong compulsion is brought to bear from above in both Italy and Russia and it will probably be many years before anything like automatic operation of the system takes place.
