BROADEN OUT

There is always a tendency for people living in a city that is the central point in a large district to get to feel that the city is the district and that they are entitled to speak for the whole. We often think that Vancouver people are that way and that they do not know about outside points and do not care. For that reason it is a good thing for people to visit their neighbors on the outside and learn their viewpoints, study their problems and try to bring about more or less co-operative efforts in the interests of all.

Take as an example the town of Stewart. There the people have a feeling that Prince Rupert is not sufficiently interested in their Meziadin Lake highway problem and in their efforts to secure the featuring of the Chickamin glacier as a tourist attraction. There also is great disappointment that the Prince Rupert businessmen did not this year organize an excursion trip to Stewart to get in touch with the people and see for themselves what the place has to offer tourists, investors and others. They think that no effort was made to secure a favorable reply to their invitation. Had there been an excursion from Prince Rupert it would have evoked a splendid response on the part of the Stewart people.

It was pointed out that Stewart did not wish to be in competition with Ketchikan in that respect. What they expected was at least a visit from the businessmen of Prince Rupert and especially from those who traded very considerably with the people of the Portland Canal centre.

INTERIOR CONDITIONS

What is true of Stewart is also true of interior points and of Queen Charlotte Islands. It is a huge territory and the people are always glad to welcome visitors. Many Prince Rupert people never visit any of these points but when they get a holiday they go away to California or some other part of the world. There can never be any community of effort in the north unless the people of the north visit back and forth. Outside people come to Prince Rupert but only a few Prince Rupert people visit the outlying sections of the district in order that they may study its resources and capabilities. A change in this respect would be well worthy of consideration.

New Army Head Was Busy Here

Brigadier and Mrs. Gillingham Had Active Week-end

Brigadier J. T. Gillingham, new divisional commander of the Salvation Army for Northern British Columbia and Alaska Division, and Mrs. Gillingham spent a very busy time while in the city over the week-end visiting the local Corps.

Friday night a special young peoples' meeting was held which was well attended. Brigadier Gillingham addressed a public gathering on Saturday night.

Services on Sunday reached a high peak as far as attendances were concerned. Mrs. Gillingham gave an address in the morning service on the subject "The Highway of Holiness."

A large crowd of young people gathered for the rally in the afternoon when the divisional commander gave a very interesting and helpful address.

At night every available seat was taken for the final meeting of their visit. Various other officers took part in the service, including Captain and Mrs. Richard Newton of Kake, Alaska. Brigadier Gillingham took as his subject "Christ, the Water of Life" and, from his own experience of over thirty years as a Salvation Army officer, drew many apt and interesting illustrations.

The service was brought to a conclusion with a short sacred musical program. Those taking part included Captain and Mrs. Richard Newton, Mrs. (Adjutant) Howard Fisher, Captain and Mrs. Ivan Halsey and Ruth and Grace Jones.

Brigadier and Mrs. Gillingham left later in the evening aboard the Catala to visit points where the Army is at work on the Naas River.

SMITHERS MEETINGS

Successful Teachers' Convention Is Held At Interior Town

Returning from Smithers on Saturday evening where he had represented the British Columbia Teachers' Federation at the Skeena-Omineca Teachers' Convention, J. S. Wilson had nothing but praise for the two-day assembly.

The chief speakers included Dr. H. B. King, chief inspector for the province, Professor G. M. Shrum and Kenneth P. Caple of the extension department of the University of British Columbia, C. J. Frederickson, inspector of the Prince George district, Mr. Stafford, inspector of the Smithers district, Miss Jeanette Sargeant, librarian from Prince George, Mr. Wilson and Denis Smith, geographical representative from Prince George.

In addition to giving the principal address at the Thursday afternoon session, Mr. Wilson also spoke at the public meeting and at the official banquet.

Vernon Crockett was chairman at the various meetings and recalled how at the first convention there fifteen years ago Mr. Wilson had been very active. Addresses of welcome were given by L. H. Kenney on behalf of the Village Commissioners of Smithers and Mrs. R. B. Brummitt of the Smithers School Board while Rev. J. E. Birchall gave the invocation.

A. D. Jones, principal of the Smithers elementary schools, replied to the addresses and, also, presided at several meetings.

The success of the convention was largely due to the very successful organization and arrangements made by Mr. Crockett and P. McCague the energetic secretary-treasurer.

Demonstrations were given by pupils under F. McCague, A. D. Jones, P. Glover, who was general accompanist, Miss Doodson, Miss Carpenter and Miss Evelyn Giraud.

General Hornby Is City Visitor

Here in connection with the promotion of his well known British land settlement scheme, Brigadier M. L. Hornby of Lethbridge, Alberta, arrived in the city on Saturday night's train from Smithers and will leave by this evening's train on his return home. Brigadier Hornby sees no reason why the war should mean the postponement of putting his plan into operation. Indeed, he sees where it might be speeded up through the migration from England of partially disabled soldiers who would make good farmers.

On Friday night Brigadier Hornby was in session at Smithers with the Bulkley Valley District Board of Trade and yesterday conferred with officers of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce.

Another Sunday Concert Enjoyed

A highly interesting Sunday evening concert was held in the Canadian Legion Hall last night. There were 125 men in khaki out and enthusiastic singing was the order of the evening.

Among the artists were Miss E. D. Priestley, Mrs. C. E. Cullen, A. J. Lancaster and Peter Lein. Rev. E. Durnford acted as chairman and the ladies of Queen Mary Chapter, Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, were the hostesses of the evening.

With the discovery of new talent among the boys in the army is increasingly interesting and new programs are looked for.

William Lamb was, as usual, a guest last night in conjunction with Mrs. J. A. Teng.
