Sendoff To Contingent At Victoria

VICTORIA, Nov. 22.—As the first overseas contingent left Victoria last week for overseas service in France it was given a wonderful send-off, Premier T. D. Pattullo addressing the soldiers as follows:

"The people of British Columbia have not the slightest doubt of your determination to see this thing through." Premier Pattullo said to the men. "Now is not the time to indulge in lamentable eventualities but we all realize that, when you do come back, many of us will not be here for we are not getting any younger.

"But there is no doubt of your unflinching determination, not only for ourselves but for all nations, even Germany, so that people will be in a position to live in peace, amity and friendship with other peoples.

"I hope the Almighty will preserve you, give you courage and send you home safely."

ARTILLERY FROM TANK

By GUY E. RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer
SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Nov. 22: (CP)—Cavalry for the First Great War was trained in the open country around here and it is being trained for the second but the boys who join regiments quartered in this district don't go to riding school anymore.

"Cavalry" in the camp from which I am writing means five-ton "light" tanks which trundle across the rolling country, each with a crew of three inside, taking orders by radio. The soldiers who would have ridden horses in the last war are drivers and technicians in this one.

Driving one of these contraptions is comparatively easy but rough. The controls work like those on a caterpillar farm tractor but the driver, who sits in an armored, padded cell, must work blind most of the time, setting his course according to directions shouted down a speaking tube by his tank commander.

Gunner Gadgets
The commander and the gunner undergo hard training. This is how the gunner is taught.

He learns first to handle .303 and .5 machine guns, take them apart, clean them, clear stoppages, change belts and the like before, during and after firing. Then he is schooled in judging distances so he can set his ranges quickly and accurately.

The student's next course is indoors with the turret of a full-scale model tank, armed with an air rifle to represent the machine gun. He learns to fire while it is stationary and while it is being shaken. He uses stationary and moving targets and small moving models of tanks for his air-rifle firing.

Next the gunner goes to a 30-yard range and works in a real tank with its two machine guns, getting practice in their control while firing long and short blasts. Again he fires while the tank is stationary, then while it is being shaken.

Fire Tactics
The gunner next joins the regular tank crew and practises on an open range, making trips during which he learns to fire at stationary and moving targets, to engage targets quickly from concealed positions, to change belts and otherwise handle his gun while the tank is moving from one position to another.

The tank starts 1,110 yards from the target, stops at 1,000 yards and again at 600 yards. At each stop the gunner fires a burst of 50 rounds. For safety's sake tank cupolas are left open and commanders indicate their intentions of firing or advancing by waving flags.

Miss E. M. Earle returned to the city on the Prince Rupert this morning from a brief trip to Belleville, Ontario, where she was called on account of the serious illness of her sister whose recovery is despair of. Miss Earle flew both ways from Vancouver to Toronto.

ENTHUSIASM IS UNUSUAL

By H.T.L.
An unusual scene of enthusiasm occurred during the evening concert for the troops at the Canadian Legion Hall on Sunday and it all happened this way:

Charles Balagno had been asked to arrange the concert for that evening. He conferred with Len Cripps. The two gentlemen called a meeting of the Operatic Society which decided to co-operate in the rendering of certain numbers from Gilbert and Sullivan's light opera "The Mikado."

Rehearsing Sunday afternoon, they went into action at 9:15 p.m. in spite of the fact that certain principals were out of town and the male chorus weakened by military duties.

The troops quickly responded to the opening chorus. Mr. Cripps, Mr. Balagno, the principals and the chorus quickly got down to the business of giving the soldier audience everything they had and the troops threw it right back at them with enthusiastic calls for encores.

Mrs. Bernad Lundahl, Betty Woods, Florence Moore, Sergeant Teng, Harold Ponder, Hugo Kraupner, with Mr. Cripps as principals, delighted the troops. Mr. Balagno's support at the piano fascinated them and Mr. Cripps' complete control of the whole ensemble convinced them, as one soldier put it, that Prince Rupert had been holding out on them.

The 45-minute program lengthened into an hour and a quarter. The final chorus and closing number of the program demanded a repeat, the end of which found the soldiers on their feet in an abandon of applause.

During the serving afterwards of coffee and biscuits, the troops offered to fill the hall any time the operatic group would give a repeat performance.

Next Sunday week, December 3, was a date agreed upon with suggestion of a larger hall with the general public admitted.

We don't know yet just where or how the program will be given but we do know that, backed by soldier enthusiasm, it will be an evening long to be remembered by all lovers of good music who may be fortunate enough to attend.

Moral Courage Will Be Needed

In the course of the days to come, both during and after the present war situation, there will be many occasions in which courage will be required by true Christians in following God's commands and doing the right, declared Rev. H. G. Funston, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Sunday morning in speaking on "The Effects of Cowardice." Sacrifice would probably be necessary by those who would do their part in helping to relieve the misery and suffering of others less fortunately blessed. The situation would have to be met with courage and resolution if the world was not to find itself in the same state after this war as it had after the last.

Mr. Funston preached from the instance of Pilate's cowardice in "washing his hands" of Jesus.
