INTERESTING CRITIC

Editor, Daily News:

Your editorial of October 4 is quite consistent with your general policy and is I think worthy of comment. I refer to a consistent undemocratic, intolerant "yes man" style with much preaching without appropriate practice.

Though the word democracy has today become highly confusing as to what one means by it there is one underlying agreement that it does imply that an efficient government, in our highly complex society, demands that the individual express himself frankly from his own personal experiences. In no other way is it possible for national Fisnerics Commission a those who are trying to co-ordinate total of 21,365.908 pounds of halisociety to acquire the necessary but was landed from Area No. 3 at data to measure the varying social the various ports of the Pacific; trends. Finally, the various polls, such as the Gallup Poll in the United States and Mass-Observation in England, have completely demonstrated that the newspapers today do not represent the real public opinion even when they are most confidently asserting that they are. The reason is that they make no serious effort to determine what people are really thinking. I would, therefore, suggest that, since you preach unity and support of the present government, which has the destinies of the community in its hands, you might also encourage free speech, which is so essential to that government if it is to meet present realities and which speech, if muzzled, must merely accumulate explosive and disastrous forces.

In this connection it must never be lost sight of that there were two factors which materially contributed to the rise to power of Hitler in Germany. The one was that he stated with complete selfconfidence that he was actually expressing the real desires and
