THE GOLDEN RULE

Two very estimable gentlemen addressed public meetings in Prince Rupert on the same night this week. Out at First Presbyterian Church Major R. L. Foorte, a retired officer of the British Indian Army, was expounding British-Israelism and the Golden Rule. Across the street from him Harold Winch, vigorous young leader of the C.C.F. party in the Legislature, was urging the merits of Socialism—and also the Golden Rule. We heard them both and, although we may not have agreed with all that either of them said, we are glad we went and appreciative of the ideas they gave us to consider.

It is good for Prince Rupert to have visits from such men as these. To hear what they have to say tends to broaden our outlook and temper our own views. It would be a good thing if more Prince Rupert people would turn out in fuller numbers to listen to such visitors.

As far as the Daily News is concerned—and we would assure our young C.C.F. visitor from Vancouver East that we are not saying this with our tongue in our cheek—we have the greatest respect for the true aims of many of the ideologies that are extant today. Where they and we fall out in many cases is on the point of practical application.

We do not mind expressing the view right here that no single 'ism—even Liberalism, believe it or not—has a mortgage on all the good principles. We have vet to find any 'ism which, in our opinion, is a cure-all, a few doses of which we have only to administer and, presto, all's well in the world, the millennium has come.

Unfortunately, there is the human element to consider and men will be men, the C.C.F. and others notwithstanding.

What would help a good deal, we believe, would be a little more toleration—a little more effort to present our opinions in a manner that may be acceptable to others, a little more readiness to consider the other fellow's views with the idea that there might be some good in them, instead of reading or listening pre-decided to scoff or scorn.

We would say that the exercise of toleration one man for the other is one of the most important and helpful principles of true democracy, no matter on what form of economic technique that democracy may be founded.

And to the politicians we would suggest that, in politics, a vote in the hand is worth two in the bush. Politicians don't win by trying to induce their friends to acclaim them. Capturing the votes that are presently against them wins the elections for politicians and haranguing and insinuating at their opponents is no way to convert them. That is why so many of these movements get just so far and then are stymied.

We would say—a little more friendship, a little more toleration, a little more tact — would be a good thing among plain honest folks like the most of us try to be as well as among the practical politicians. And we will be moving along the road towards real co-operation and an improvement in this old world—for which the large majority of us are yearning.

DENTAL ATTENTION

Miss Priestly, the public health nurse, tells the Prince Rupert Parent-Teachers' Association of the importance of early and regular dental inspection for children. Her advice might well be acted upon. She suggests that regular and frequent visits to the dentist are a good deal cheaper than the big one which procrastination will entail. Even the frequent, cheap visits may be more than some can find the funds to finance. The Prince Rupert Rotary Club, having taken up an appeal of Miss Priestly a year or so ago along this line, has been doing good work in getting some of the younger under-privileged school children supplied with dental treatment but there are others that the resources of the Rotary Club have not been able to reach.

Dental treatment will some day be a part of some national health scheme such as British Columbia's progressive provincial secretary, Dr. Weir, advocates. Meantime, we can work towards it and realizing its importance is one of the first approaches.

ARMSTRONG TOO GOOD

Scores Technical Knockout At Seattle Over Richie Fontaine In Third Round.

SEATTLE, October 21: (CP) — Henry Armstrong, world's welter-weight boxing champion, retained his title by scoring a third round technical knockout over Richie Fontaine of Missoula, Montana, in their scheduled fifteen round bout here. Fontaine went to the canvass five times in the first round and once in the third before the towel was thrown in.

QUALIFICATIONS

LONDON, October 21: (CP) — One Canadian volunteer registering at Canada House for war service described himself as "a non-smoker and abstainer, God-fearing, strong, fearless and healthy." Another suggests he would make a "competent dictator."

SEA DOGS ADMIRAL'S EXAMPLES

Canada's Naval Chief Was Born To Army But Chose Senior Service

OTTAWA, October 21: (CP) — Percy Walker Nelles, first Canadian-trained sailor to hold the rank of rear-admiral in His Majesty's service, sprang from military stock. But his boyhood heroes were Drake and Nelson, not Wolfe and Wellington.

Today Rear-Admiral P. W. Nelles is director of naval service and chief of the naval staff, Department of National Defence. He is commander of Canada's seagoing defenders and in charge of the vital work of defending the coasts in the present war.

Admiral Nelles' earliest recollections are of his reading of the exploits of Britain's sea heroes. "I played with boats, because I didn't want to go into the army," he said in an interview here. "I never had a minute's doubt. The navy was to be my career."

And on the Grand River and lesser tributaries in Brant County, the future admiral sailed his model craft and imagined himself a tactician of future wars.

Percy Nelles was born in Brantford, Ont., son of the late Brigadier Charles M. Nelles, C. M. G., who served in the Northwest Rebellion, 1885, the South African War and commanded the Royal Canadian Dragoons in the First Great War.

Young Nelles was educated at Lakeside School, Peterborough, Ontario and at Trinity College School, Port Hope, Ontario, until in 1908 his dream came true and he was accepted as a cadet into the Royal Canadian Navy. He was a lieutenant in the Canadian service when war broke out in 1914.

In Royal Navy
Soon afterwards he was loaned to the Royal Navy and served first on H. M. S. Suffolk, where he received important training. He was later transferred to H. M. S. Antrim, engaged in conveying Canadian troop ships to Glasgow.

When the First Great War was over, he became senior naval officer at Halifax and then at Esquimaux. In 1930 he served as acting captain aboard H. M. S. Dragon in the British fleet. In 1931 he commanded the destroyers Saguenay and Skeena when they were brought from Great Britain to become units in Canada's navy.

In 1934 he was appointed to the highest position in the Canadian naval service as director of naval service and chief of the naval staff. He was promoted to the rank of rear-admiral.

Admiral Nelles is a wiry individual, possessed of boundless energy. As a youth he shone in running and at rugby. His recreation as an adult has been golf.

Admiral Nelles was married in 1915 to Helen Schuyler Allen of Pembroke, Bermuda. There are two sons, Charles Macklin and William Allen.

Stars of a gathering of former Essendon footballers in Australia were Harry Heath and Charlie Watt, both 83, who played in 1875. Hero of the reunion was Alex Dick, who captained the team to their first league victory in 1891 and retained the position in 1892-3-4.

At a banquet given the touring Australian Rugby Union football team in London, Dr. W. F. Matthews, manager of the tourists, declared the whole team would join the forces on their return to Sydney.

John Henry has been an Australian racing judge for many years, but recalls his worst day, in January, 1935, when he officiated in two races ending in dead-heats, two wins by half a head, and one by a neck.

Montreal. In the following year he was appointed general superintendent of the Saskatchewan district with headquarters at Saskatoon and was transferred to Edmonton as general superintendent of the Alberta district in January 1936.

J. H. McKinnon was born at Whycomagh, Cape Breton, June 7, 1883. In 1902 he joined the Canadian Northern Railway as clerk in the freight department at Winnipeg, later becoming chief clerk in the yard office and the superintendent's office there. After serving at Dauphin as agent and warehouse foreman at Saskatoon, in 1909 he became travelling passenger agent for the company at Winnipeg and then at Toronto. He was made general agent for the company at St. Paul, Minn., in 1911, and district freight and passenger agent at Duluth, Minn., the following year. He was successively superintendent for the Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific Railway at Virginia, Minn., superintendent for the Canadian National Railways at Kamloops and Prince Albert, and in 1936 was appointed superintendent of the Calgary division with headquarters at Calgary, Alta.

Varied Experience

Sherman Smith has had a varied experience in engineering and operation activities in western Canada since he joined the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway as resident engineer in 1907 at Portage La Prairie. After serving as assistant engineer at Melville and Saskatoon, he became assistant superintendent at Edson in 1918 which post he held until transferred to Calgary in 1926 and to Edmonton in 1931 in a similar capacity. He was born at Omaha, Nebraska, August 26, 1878.

C. B. Brown, chief engineer, operation department of the Canadian National Railways, was born at Ithaca, New York, and, after attending the Ithaca High School, graduated from Cornell University with a degree of civil engineering in 1901. After several years of engineering activities Mr. Brown joined the Canadian Government Railways at Moncton in 1913 as assistant general manager and chief engineer. When the Canadian Government Railways, with several other railway entities, were finally amalgamated into Canadian National system in 1923, Mr. Brown was appointed chief engineer of operation for the system. Mr. Brown is a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada, the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Railway Engineering Association, the University Club of Montreal and the Corporation of Professional Engineers of Quebec.
