Mr. Ekman has been a well known farmer in the district since the war. He expects to move to Vancouver immediately and to establish himself there.

SMITHERS RED CROSS

Organized For Active Work In Bulkley Valley During War

SMITHERS, October 20:—More than seventy persons gathered in the reception room of the Canadian Legion here on Tuesday evening to attend the meeting of the Red Cross organization for the purpose of electing permanent officers for the ensuing year and to map out a course of campaign.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. A. N. Dando who had been chairman of the preliminary meetings. Mrs. R. J. Collison, as secretary, and Mrs. N. H. Kilpatrick, as treasurer, read their reports resulting from previous meetings.

Upon calling for the election of the permanent officers the meeting was of the opinion that those who had undertaken the work and carried it along so successfully in the preliminary stages had done splendidly and they were unanimously elected to continue for the ensuing year. Thus Mrs. Dando was elected as president, Mrs. R. J. Collison as secretary and Mrs. N. H. Kilpatrick as treasurer of the organization.

A strong executive of fourteen members, representative of the whole valley from Topley in the east to Evelyn in the west, was elected to work with the officers.

The Red Cross Association in the Bulkley Valley is now off to a good start and it is expected that it will carry on an aggressive campaign during the length of the war.

Nearly one hundred members have already joined the society in Smithers.

TERRACE

E. Hamer, who set out for his mining prospect last Thursday, arrived at his home in Terrace Sunday evening after having been lost in the woods to the north of town. He appeared not much the worse for his experience. Although he had fasted for two days, he declared to his family, a good sleep. Search parties had been scouring the nearby wilds without success and a good deal of anxiety was felt for Mr. Hamer's safety.

The public works department has been engaged on the job of providing bituminous surfacing for Terrace's two main thoroughfares. Although the work was begun two weeks ago the frequent and heavy rains, made progress slow. The main road from the Skeena Bridge, right through the village as far as the school, is being treated and also the transverse highway north and south across the municipal area. When completed this work will make a great improvement on the old conditions.

Miss B. Covington left for Stewart on Thursday.

Price Of Butter
Fat Is Mounting

SMITHERS, Oct. 20.—The price of butter fat has been steadily rising since the beginning of the war and the farmers will obtain considerable benefit in this war. A short time ago they were getting 20c per pound and it is expected to reach 35c a pound in the near future.

While consumers may complain about the increased cost of butter it is some satisfaction to know that it is going into the pockets of the local farmers and that the money will keep circulating and not go out of the country.

gether With War News Reel

Two outstanding pictures—"Bulldog Drummond's Secret Police," another of the popular detective series with John Howard in the title role, and "Love Affair," another delightful romance with Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer, comprise a double bill picture program at the Capitol Theatre tonight. An added attraction is a news reel featuring war scenes in England and France.

Boasting the unusual setting of an ancient English castle where the detective and friends have gathered to celebrate his marriage "Bulldog Drummond's Secret Police" develops into a thrilling and mysterious criminal hunt when a vast 300-year old treasure is found buried far beneath the castle and the woman who found it is murdered. Howard has as his fellow players Heather Angel, H. B. Warner, E. E. Clive, Reginald Denny and Elizabeth Patterson.

"Love Affair" is the story of the luxury loving fiancée of a wealthy business man who sends her on frequent trips to Europe to collect art objects for him. She meets a notorious continental playboy and a romance develops which sweeps them off their feet. The plot de-

SWIFT IN 1914? YES BUT 'T WAS DIFFERENT WAR

were constantly in the news in the war's kaleidoscope.

French and Smith-Dorrien were the idols of the British public in those early war days and almost equally well known were Joffre and Foch of France. There were also Maunoury, Sarrail, d'Esperey, Castelnau and others.

Von Falkenhayn soon succeeded the ailing Count von Moltke as Chief of the German General Staff, the Crown Prince was caricatured as the "Clown Prince" and youngsters made the names of von Kluck, and von Bulow the butts of many puns.

Newspaper headlines in 1914 were greatly different from nowadays. They told of grim battles in which thousands of corpses lay on the field—the Germans sacrificed thousands of lives in their efforts to break through to Calais. A correspondent recorded that 1,500 bodies were found in a small area after several days fighting at La Bessee.

There were stories of atrocities, of spies—men and women—shot behind the lines, of thousands drowned when the Belgians cut the dykes after the fall of Antwerp and the drive to the coast. Prisoners were taken by the hundred and the early air attacks by Zeppelins and airplanes were front page news.

They were the days when the Germans fought a losing battle against Britain's naval might. During the first three months there were naval raids on the English coast. The Allies were shocked when the Cressy, Aboukir and Hogue, all armored cruisers, were sunk in one day by a German submarine.

Raiders of the South Seas

Capt. von Muller in the Emden led the British a merry dance in the Indian Ocean, sinking ship after ship of the merchant marine until the Australian cruiser Sydney put an end to her remarkable career. In the Atlantic were the Karlsruhe and the Leipzig with nearly a dozen others on the oceans.

In the present war Britain's mastery of the seas was established at the outset—25 years ago with Germany's war vessels abroad on the high seas it took months of relentless effort on the part of Allied warcraft to sweep the sea clean of surface ships and years to control the submarine menace.

With the spectacular manoeuvres of fast-moving armies and colorful naval encounters to review, newspapers in the latter months of 1914 presented absorbing editions but the events recorded represented heavy sacrifice of human lives.
