

Eyes stay Bright when you have Right LIGHT

There is no eyestrain with its accompanying discomfort and headaches in a properly illuminated home. There are no dim corners. No glare. No blighting shadows. Correctly placed lamps - wall, table, floor - of the right intensity make it a pleasure to read, sew, play, work. Your home can be eye-saving at surprisingly small outlay: lamps, bought by the carton, cost little and we'll gladly help you with the proper placing.

Table lamps that really illuminate are a great help to tired eyes. We have a fine assortment of styles and shades at lowest prices.

This class of vice might be considered a convenience or necessary evil and should be given welcome support and protection and not be forced into the mire deeper than ever. A controlled disease spreader is better than one exploited for political or other gain.

Anyone seeking this sort of vice as a pastime will do so whether in protected districts or previous mentioned places. And anyone using this vice for any other reason should have a good stiff penalty
