FUTURE OF CITY

Member of Audit Bureau of Circulations

The City Commissioner has intimated quite clearly Over One Hundred that he does not expect to continue in his present posi- Are Engaging In tion longer than the end of this year. He seems to be getting a little tired of the job. In view of this it may be Gymnasium Work wise for the citizens to consider what is to be the next step.

the government to grant the city a special charter to pro- over one hundred persons, about Weather Forecast The Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce is asking vide for the appointment of a city manager. This, it is fifty percent juniors, at the local understood, would mean the passing of special legislation. If anything of that kind is to be done it should be pushed ahead at once because it takes time to make all the necessary arrangements.

If a city manager is not appointed, it is suggested that a mayor and council serving without pay and appointing their own manager would be the next best plan. Discovers Home He might or might not be an engineer and he might or might not be a man who could handle the work of treasurer so as to combine more than one office. Many people fear that, if we once revert to the old system of a paid mayor and council with each department reporting to it, Emerald oil is such a remarkable the city will soon land up in debt and the best results cannot be obtained.

In any case it seems probable that the department of days. municipalities will have the duty of scrutinizing any new loans that may be made, if any are made, so that the city trating that even old stubborn will not have a free hand in the matter of borrowing.

INCREASED BORROWINGS

There is one organization that does not hesitate about borrowing. The British government seems to be going the limit in its efforts to put the country on a sound defensive hasis.

Germany, it is said, has borrowed far beyond any hope of repayment, the loans being more or less forced loans such as those forced upon the rich people of England FOR in the middle ages. Italy too is going the limit and more in order to effect improvements and keep the people employed It is, undoubtedly, easier for a dictator to borrow than for the administration in a democracy.

It is being charged that the Canadian government has been too careless in regard to borrowing but the spending of the Ottawa government is as nothing to that of the Washington administration. It is a spending era. Most neonle as well as governments seem to spend as much as they can earn and often a little more.
