HOME BUILDING MONEY

So far it has been impossible for Prince Rupert to secure loans under the federal home building scheme owing to the fact that the city building lots are too small and that there are no building restrictions. Plans are now under way for a zoning bylaw which will set apart areas for apartment houses, for business and for strictly resident ial sites. Also provision will be made for the restrictions of new buildings to an area amounting to at least a lot and a half, preferably two lots to a building.

The people who originally planned Prince Rupert townsite evidently did so with the object of making as much money out of it as possible and without caring what became of the city in the future. To sell 25 foot residential lots was almost criminal, especially in a country where there is so much vacant land. All that can be done now is to see that new homes are provided with plenty of garder Merit System space around them. This can be done by means of a civic
