DAILY EDITION. SATURDAY, MARCH 2

SHALL WE FIGHT M'BRIDE OR LAY DOWN?

There is no question for Prince Rupert Liberals to answer in the above headline. It is simply written in an interrogative form to startle into attention. The Vancouver Sun says: Should the Liberal party make a contest in the election now thrust upon the province? and answers this by the statement that the opinion in authoritative circles of the Liberal party in Victoria is that there should be no contest.

This was written on Tuesday and since then a Liberal convention has been in conference for a couple of days. What this body may decide to do in the premises we are not at this writing advised, and can only express a deep conviction that the opinion expressed by the Sun must be erroneous and misleading. If not so the Liberals of the other parts of the province must be of a different kidney to those from this city. There is a whine that the Liberals are not supported by the public; that at the last federal election they voted solid seven Conservatives for Ottawa. This must have happened because the Liberals of other parts of the province went into the battle faint-hearted, as they appear from the Sun's statement to be now, believing that Dick McBride was certain to win.

Prince Rupert Liberals were not affected by any such considerations. They fought the battle as a duty, boldly and cleanly, and succeeded in rolling up a handsome majority for their candidate, Duncan Ross, in spite of all the well-oiled machinery to control votes with which the Two-Man government was equipped and put in use under a full head of steam. If the other Liberals of the province had fought as valiantly, this present chance for a political tussel with the forces of political corruption would have been warmly welcomed. We succeeded because the Liberals of this city are all Progressives, and as a little yeast leavens the lump the better half of the Conservatives of this city are now Progressives, and not the slavish serfs of a political dictator. Eight of our members have seats in the Liberal convention. They are all earnest, energetic, go-ahead business men and they are likely to shake up the courage of some of the mossbacks of the body into taking a more optimistic view of the situation, instilling into them some of Prince Rupert's fine fighting spirit.

(We have just learned by wire that they have succeeded in doing this, and that every seat in the province is to be contested.)

CHURCH UNION VOTED ON TOMORROW.

Every intelligent Canadian, quite irrespective of religious opinions or ecclesiastical preferences, is interested in the church union question. The interest is supreme and vital at the present time for Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists. But no man who cares for the good estate of the Holy Catholic Church or for the upbuilding of the Canadian nation can be careless as to the efficiency of religious institutions and agencies of this country.

The difficult questions involved in church union are not doctrinal. The creed statements hammered out on the anvils of past controversy can be reshaped under the more genial influence of a more truly Christian religious life. The day of elaborate and detailed creeds and of cast-iron subscription is past forever. As the late Principal Caven said on one historic occasion: "It is my privilege to believe many things which I am not under obligation to subscribe, and which I will not require that my brethren should subscribe."

The fact that a doctrinal basis has been framed for three Canadian denominations acceptable to the great majority of informed and thoughtful ministers and members, conservatives and progressives alike, is a great achievement. That done, no matter what happens to the present union movement, things can never fall quite back to their old condition.

The campaign is only a few days old, dating from the issuing of the call by the Progressives for a Conservative convention, and yet already "the spoils of office" are being handed out. Ed. Clark, quite a promising Progressive, has been made one of the returning officers at the coming election. But there is a hope and a belief that few of the Progressives can be bought as readily.

Is William Manson the candidate of McBride or the candidate of the people of the Skeena district? The question is pertinent for the reason that in advertising the meeting of last night the Conservatives said "all supporters of the McBride government are invited to a meeting," etc. This can only be interpreted in one way, that none but supporters of McBride were invited. It shut out all the Progressive Conservatives of Prince Rupert and also every other citizen of progressive ideas, whether Conservative, Liberal, Socialist or what not. Mr. Manson is not only a candidate but he was until a few days ago representative of the whole people of this district. It was supposed that he was going to give an account of his stewardship. The way of advertising the meeting shows how stupid it is to expect such ordinary, fair and honest dealings under the Two-Man legislative monopoly.

For a week the weather has been delightful. Brilliant sunshine opens the mornings while the wide sidewalks are frosted over like the sugar coating of a bridal cake.

PRINTERS' GREAT COST CONGRESS

Just Concluded Sessions in Toronto — Delegates from All Parts of Canada Were Present.

The largest convention of printers ever held in Canada has just been held in Toronto with over 400 delegates present. The assembly is known as the Cost Congress of Printers in Eastern Canada. Though, as the term implies, the gathering's membership only for printers in Eastern Canada, there were delegates from points between Prince Rupert, B. C., in the west, and Halifax in the east.

This was the first cost congress held in Canada, and is the outgrowth of cost educational campaigns carried on by the Canadian Press Association among the proprietors of combined newspaper and job concerns in Canada.

RALPH CONNOR AT CLIFTON
 Will Rest for Week at Springs Before Returning to Winnipeg.

Rev. Dr. Charles W. Gordon of Winnipeg (Ralph Connor), who has been visiting his brother, Dr. Andrew R. Gordon, for the past few days, is now staying at Clifton Springs, N. Y., where he will spend a week at the sanitarium before returning to Winnipeg.

He has had specially heavy extra work since the death of the Rev. Dr. Carmichael, superintendent of missions, and of Principal Patrick of Manitoba College. He hopes to complete the revision of the manuscript of "Gorporal Cameron," which deals with the R. N. W. M. P., within a short time.

Now that women are to be admitted to the bar local barristers will do well to devote more attention to the drape of their gowns and the color scheme of their brief bags.
