Missionary Show
 At Seal Cove Is Very Interesting

A missionary exhibition was held during the week at St. Peter's Church, Seal Cove, and proved very interesting. There was a wide variety of articles on display.

Mrs. G. A. Rix, assisted by Mrs. Priestley and Miss Elsa Heaps, acted as adjudicators for the various exhibits shown including the best dressed dolls for which prizes were awarded. There were also prizes for essays on the life of David Livingstone and for the best arranged scrap books. The display of model African villages, one in Livingstone's time and one of the present day, was much admired. The special lighting effects were a feature.

Work done by boys and girls of St. Peter's missionary classes were also on exhibition and were creditably remarked upon.

Mrs. J. B. Gibson gave a brief talk on missionary work in the diocese as she declared the exhibition open.
