Jake says the time to hear the soldiers sing is when they are going back to barracks late at night.

One of the boys accosted a citizen standing at the street corner and asked him if he could tell him the way to the post office. The citizen was carrying his libations very well, and said he would be pleased to direct him. He then said:

"You go straight ahead four blocks and turn to the right. "No, let's start over again.

"You go down here four blocks and turn to your right, three blocks. "No let's start over again.

"You go up here three blocks and then turn to your left," and he then interrupted himself and said, "Say. Mister, I don't believe we'll ever reach the post office from where we are."

"I'll soon see about that," replied the constable, promptly pitching the unfortunate man out.

"Thanks," replied the boss. "I've been trying to get him out for a long time. You see, he's the bailiff."
