"Mad Dog of Hitlerism" Will Be Destroyed And Civilization Saved, Declares Chamberlain

MANCHESTER, April 16: (CP) -Addressing the National Free Church Council in Manchester today, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain reiterated his confidence that the "mad dog of Hitlerism" would be destroyed. A few days ago he had declared that he was ten times more confident of the successful outcome of the war than when it had commenced. He was even more confident now.

A victory for the German "master of wickedness" would mean the downfall of civilization but civilization was not going down. The fight against Nazism was just another war between right and wrong.

Mr. Chamberlain spoke of the counter-invasion of Norway, declaring that Germany had made many miscalculations but no greater miscalculation than that of the invasion of Scandinavia.

The Prime Minister declared that the German invasion of Scandinavia showed that "no people, however meek, however peaceful, however harmless they may be, can be the same until this mad dog is destroyed."

CHANCE FOR HAAKON BERLIN-King Haakon of Norway will be given another chance to return to Oslo or else he will become a hunted refugee, the German government said today. Announcement was made of the setting up of another puppet Inglo Christiansen. This is the Norwegian government which Germany recognizes. "For the welfare of the country," it is suggested that Haakon return to his capital. Meantime King Haakon has made another appeal to his people to continue resistance to the invader who would destroy them. There were unconfirmed reports that Haakon was now in Sweden. The German high command still insists that there has been no landing of Allied troops in Norway.
