FAREWELL AT LUNCH

W. J. Alder and W. H. Tobey Given Send-Off By Chamber of Commerce

Yesterday afternoon there was a large gathering of members of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce at a special luncheon in honor of two leading members, W. J. Alder, city commissioner, and W. H. Tobey, C.N.R. divisional superintendent, who are leaving the city. W. M. Watts presided.

In proposing a toast to the departing guests Mr. Watts spoke of the records of the two men whose activities in the community had been outstanding. When the provincial government decided to place Mr. Alder in charge of the affairs of the community they had made a wise choice. By his firmness and determination he had placed the city in a fine financial condition. He had faithfully performed his duties in spite of considerable opposition. Some people had at times thought his policies rather stringent but his aim in carrying them out had been of the highest. The ratepayers of the city owed him a debt of gratitude. It was now up to the people of the community on the resumption of the rights of self-government to carry out their duties in such a way as to keep the city on the right track. On behalf of the Chamber Mr. Watt extended to Mr. Alder the sincere thanks of the community. He wished him and Mrs. Alder many years of happiness in their home in the south and when they visited the city later, he hoped they would find it still making progress.

Turning to Mr. Tobey, Mr. Watt said he was one of the best loved and most highly respected citizens of Prince Rupert. Not only was his public record good but he was held in high esteem by his own employees. His kindness of manner endeared him to all. Some people after almost a lifetime of activity were willing to retire on their laurels but not so Mr. Tobey. He was starting in a new position where his activities would be increased. Mr. Watt referred to the interest Mr. Tobey had taken in the Sea Cadets, the Boys' Band and the Gyro Club. One of his proudest tasks had been what he had done in his leisure hours for the boys. Perhaps having boys of his own had made him keen to give other people's boys a chance. Mr. Watt also spoke appreciatively of Mrs. Tobey and her activities in the city. He hoped both would have a great measure of success and enjoyment in their work and home.

Guests Reply

Mr. Alder said it was with a feeling of sadness he was leaving Prince Rupert after several years' residence here. He had been closely connected with the city since he first came here in 1909. Two years before he had heard about the place and he still believed it would become one of the principal cities on the coast. It was winning out in spite of handicaps. The coast had developed slowly but he really believed it was opening up now. The government was recognizing its strategic situation and it was bound to go ahead.

Mr. Tobey said this was the first time he had had to say good-bye after a long stay in one place. He had come to Prince Rupert on Christmas Day in 1906. He came north on the Steamer Tees with Captain Locke in charge and reported to J. H. Pillsbury. They arrived in Port Essington on Christmas Eve and George Frizell was there. They wanted to stay over for the Christmas Eve dance but the skipper said the boat would be aground soon if they remained. They delayed getting away and soon the boat was aground so they went to the dance.

Among those who were here in those early days were John Dytch, R. L. McIntosh, postmaster at Port Essington and later at Prince Rupert. Also George Nickerson was with them at the Saints' Rest boarding house and was just as ready to argue then as he was today.

Mr. Tobey said that in his new work he would meet with the problem of trying to run a railway without money just as he had done here. He would always look back to the splendid friendships he had formed here.

Mrs. Arthur Dunn of Massett arrived in the city on the Prince John today from the Queen Charlotte Islands for a brief visit. She will return home Friday night on the same steamer.

Man in the Moon

Good morning. Have you heard the latest?

An inquirer in Woman's Weekly says: "Would it be fatal to shave my legs?" Not necessarily, Diana, but don't take any chances.

A correspondent says he wishes Hitler were like Napoleon. Napoleon's dead.

So far as I can see nobody in Canada is buying belts — something to tighten you know, when the foraging becomes rough.

You may have heard the radio announcer say: "Wait a few moments, some real news has just come in."

Those English newspapers are funny. The Evening Standard says: "This year it will be quite in order to wear trousers at a cocktail dance."

Now that the Fuehrer has decided to commandeer all the leather, what will the poor Germans eat?

The blackouts, the bombing dangers and the various restrictions have brought about some curious situations in London. Recently, soon after an air raid warning there was a loud clap of thunder which gave a lady in the tunnel the trembles. Then a little voice piped up: "It's all right, it's not Hitler, it's Gawd."

Jake has been talking of joining the forces but none of them seem to want him. He says he does not think he could become a Scot because he has no sporrans. The artillery won't take him because he's too fond of shooting off his head and they're short of ammunition and he's much too wild for the "Wild Irish." All he can do is root from the sidelines. Poor Jake: I feel like buying him a sporrans but I can't buy him the language.

People are wondering if that raider driven off from the drydock was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, spying around to see if there is room in the yard to build one of those little admiralty boats.

When it was announced that the Quebec legislature was about to open, the defeated former leader, M. Duplessis, decided to fly to California.

Jake wants to know why the first initial of so many Frenchmen is "M." Well, Jake, it's not quite the same as Mister but something very nearly like it although you have to be a Frenchman to wear that kind of a decoration and you must be a Frenchman to be able to pronounce it correctly. armhol-derreneqbecanno

Whifflets From The Waterfront

C.N.R. steamer Prince Rupert, Capt. H. E. Sedden, arrived in port at 10:40 this morning from Vancouver, Powell River and Ocean Falls and sailed at 1 o'clock this afternoon for Ketchikan and Stewart whence she is due back here tomorrow evening southbound.

With the supply of fish not so good the last few days, local herring reduction plants have had some time off this week. Fish deliveries have been slow and no run of any volume has so far developed in the harbor.

C.N.R. steamer Prince John, Capt. Neil McLean, from Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands, arrived in port at 12 noon today and will be here until Friday night at 10:30 when she will sail on her return south over the same route.

R. Rennie, new Inspector of Lloyds underwriters, arrived in the city on the Prince Rupert this morning from Vancouver, being here on official duties.

KITSELAS

Brigadier J. T. Gillingham, divisional commander of the Salvation Army for Northern British Columbia and Alaska, and Mrs. Gillingham were given a hearty welcome by the people of Kitseelas during a recent visit to the village. They were met at the station and there was a procession to the Salvation Army Hall where a reception was held, an address of welcome being made by Mrs. E. Edward Bolton. Later the visiting officers inspected the work of the Army, the young people and the Home League as well as visiting some of the homes. They were the guests at Kitseelas of Adjutant and Mrs. M. G. McKay.

Envoy and Mrs. David Williams and two sons were visitors in Kitseelas from Skeena Crossing recently on Salvation Army work.

Adjutant and Mrs. McKay and daughter, Dorothy, made a trip to Hazelton to attend Salvation Army congress. At Klappox they spent two days showing moving pictures in the fine new 40 by 30 foot hall there, three hundred people from all around having gathered to see the pictures.

M. G. McKay has been elected chief councillor of the native village of Kitseelas for the year 1940. Other members of the council are Ben Seymour, Arthur Bolton, Walter Wright and S. W. Beaven with John Cecil, Roy Bolton and Fred McKenzie as constables.
