On the return to the Armory a lecture on gases was given and the construction of the latest respirator was explained by Sergeant-Major Dey

It is planned that the next lecture will be on signalling and, if duties allow him to be free, Regimental Sergeant-Major Parsonage will give the talk. If the Armory is -not available the lecture will be given in the Canadian Legion Hall. An appeal was made to those already in the unit to bring their friends with them. This civil organization should number several hundreds as it affords all men of any age from eighteen to sixty an opportunity to learn how to defend his city and his country in an emergency. Isolated individual action is useless. Organized effort is a guarantee of success. Enrolment is still open to all men and to get full advantage of the training men should enrol at once.

Regimental Sergt.-Major Simpkins was in general charge of the parade last night, assisted by unit commanders Alex. Mitchell, D. G. Borland, G. W. Abbott and Peter Lakie.

Appointment Is Important

OTTAWA, Aug. 21: (CP)-In announcing the appointment of Capt. V. G. Brodeur as naval attache at Washington the minister of naval affairs said: "It is a newly created post and its importance in view of recent developments is stressed by the fact that Capt. Brodeur is second senior officer of the Royal Canadian Navy."
