RUMOR IS RIFE

It is at times like this that rumors get going at the least provocation. The radio recounts rumors heard in Europe and sometimes gives them as facts. Propagandal is sent out by everybody but especially by the Germans, some of it true but most of it untrue. The art is to so mix up truth and falsehood that the falsehood is ingeniously; disguised.

Take Prince Rupert affairs and we find a somewhat similar condition existing. There are all sorts of rumors going the rounds in regard to citizens of other than British origin, most of which are not true. Most of these people would be glad to help the Allies if they knew what; to do. They have sworn allegiance to the British crown and are true to their oath. While living here they have enjoyed all the benefits of British citizenship and appreciate it. Most of the stories told around town in regard to them have been found to be groundless.

HOLDING FAST

The French and British lines in France seem to be John Moser of Vancouver arrived, Charles Graham, inspector of holding out against the Germans and, as has been point in the city this week to take over mines, sailed this morning on the ed out often, holding means winning in this case. The the management of Edward Lipsett Cardena for Butedale enroute to only hope for the Germans is to keep up their winning Ltd. ways. They cannot afford to lose. German morale is not!so good that it will stand a strain similar to that to which i the British and French have been subjected. That is not only our opinion but the opinion of a number of men better able to judge than we are.

AMERICAN OPINION

American opinion seems to be changing more decidedly toward the Allies of late. It is becoming more vocal every day. Germany has been told by at least one senator that the United States would be bound to come to the help of Great Britain rather than allow her to be swallowed up. Journalists and politicians have been making their feelings known and gradually developing a pro-Ally sentiment.

But one 3.00 feature puzzled the British teams 9.00 Before each match the R.A.F. cap-02 | tain was presented by the French .25 captain with a large bunch of flowers. After several such presentations, the team of a certain fighter squadron felt that some reciprocal gesture was called for. When the teams lined up for the next game and the French captain stepped forward wih a large nosegay, the British captain walked to meet him -with a box of cigarettes and a dozen bottles of beer. Honor was satisfied.
