WALLIS IS GODMOTHER

Duchess Of Windsor Wears Khaki -Is Busy In French War Work

PARIS, April 23: (CP)- Today Wallis, Duchess of Windsor, is no longer wearing her traditional blue-but khaki like her royal husband who serves at the front with the troops of whom he was once surreme chief.

Little is seen of the Duchess in Paris except in connection with war work. She is a large subscriber to each armament bond issue and has allowed her picture and encouragement to be used in connection with their publicity. But he moment war began she offered her services, turned her Medilerranean home into a convalescent hospital and is now actively rngaged in the work of the French Red Cross, the Section Sanitaire Automobile Feminine and other wemen a organizations which serve the army. Her latest achieven' nt is to become "marraine de guerre," which translates roughly as "war godmother," to a whole reg ment of French soldiers.

A short time ago a regiment of infantry, after several months at the front, returned for a rest period. It was stationed in a village in northern France. Since some poilus were without families, they asked for a "marraine"

To the delight of the poilus the Duchess paid them a visit recently. The Flemish village was in fes-; tive dress. From all the windows the Union Jack and the Tricolor of France fraternized. Across the streets were paper streamers and garlands-faded garlands because! they had already served to celebrate the Armistice. Nothing is! lost in that corner of France-
