NEWSPAPER DISASTERS

During the past year no fewer than fifty-one daily newspapers in the United States went out of business. In two years and a half prior to last January 98 papers pu up the shutters and hung the "For Rent" sign on the front of the premises. This makes it all the more notable that during that period a place with a population of little over six thousand people managed to carry two daily papers. It is really a rather wonderful record.

PHONEER OF ALASKA DIES

After sixty years of service in Alaska Rev. Father Kashavaroff died this week. He was a priest of the Russian Orthodox Church and, when the territory was conveyed to the United States by Russia, he remained in the country and carried on the work of the church.

Probably Father Kashavaroff will be better known to history as the curator of a wonderful museum at Juneau. He carried on this work along with that of the Church! for a number of years, giving of his practical knowledge to the thousands of tourists who annually visited the Alaska capital.
