HIS LUCKY BURIAL

BERNE, Switzerland, May 13: (CP)—Pierre Lardi, 16, would have died under 10 feet of ice and snow from an avalanche had he not landed with it on a railway track where the train crew, digging through, found him alive.

DIES AT HOBBY

BRISBANE, Australia, May 13: (CP)—An ardent philatelist, L. S. Bagster, professor of chemistry in the University of Queensland, was found dead in his chair where he had been looking over his stamp collection.

Beta Wins Over Alpha In Soccer

As a result of strong defence the Beta soccer team defeated Alpha two to nothing on Saturday afternoon in the High School League. The play was vigorous from the start with both teams concentrating on defence. The Alpha backs did well to stop the Beta forwards in the first half. In the second half Alpha forwards couldn't get past the Beta defence but later in the second half Gurvich out Beta in the lead with two good shots. Wilson was the pick of the Beta defence and Holtby for Alpha. Johnson played well at right half for Alpha. Beta—Olsen, Sharp, Wilson, Finley, Silversides, Franks, Gurvich, D. McLachlan, McLeod, Postuk, Wong, R. McLachlan. Alpha—Calderwood, Holtby, Grimmsom, Breen, Moore, Johnson, Hankinson, Ciccone, Severeth, King, Landry, Sakamoto. Referee was James Clark and linesmen were Pavlikis and Bartlett.

LOWLANDS INVADERS ARE HELD

Liege Holds Out

Liege, scene of a bitter siege in the opening days of the First Great War, was reported Sunday to be holding out vigorously. Its defences have been most effective in the face of the assault of armored troops supported by aircraft. The ground in that area is strewn with German dead. Allied forces are in control of the most of Rotterdam. The British co-operating with the Dutch in clearing out the Nazis, the Allied forces recapturing the marine barracks. In the Albert Canal sector British and French forces energetically and effectively co-operated in repelling the invaders. The enemy were held up north and east of the Canal through the destruction of bridges and roads. British and French air forces are active in the destruction of bridges and railways as well as in raiding of German troop columns between Holland and the Rhine. Brussels was bombed twice Saturday while the Belgian army's strong line of defence continued to hold up the German invaders and British and French troops, supported by tanks and artillery, moved up to bolster the Belgian positions. Lieut. General Henri Dennis, Belgian minister of defence, declared that the Nazi thrust had been bogged down on land in a maze of traps, obstructions, mined roads and bridges long prepared to halt just such a blitzkrieg. The German invaders were halted in all border areas and behind the lines, Belgian defenders mopped up German parachute troops.

Dutch shock troops were reported officially to have recaptured airdromes at The Hague and Rotterdam. Foreign Minister Eelco van Kleffens, in London to confer with British officials, said that no airdromes in the Netherlands remained in the hands of Germans. He also declared that German forces on the left bank of the Nieuwemass River at Rotterdam had been repulsed at the cost of one thousand Dutch lives. Germans continue to be landed by parachute and seaplane. German planes smashed Saturday at the centre of Amsterdam, killing an estimated thirty persons, while stout defence troops in the eastern frontier lines gave engineers time to complete inundation of the main flood water defences, cutting Holland in half. The Dutch army, after having held its own in the first surprise attack, fought vigorously to wipe out "islands" of German parachute troops who were trying to gain control of strategic points behind the defences. The Dutch High Command announced that French and British troops had made junction with Dutch forces. Planes were reported to be flying "all over" the lowlands. The British Air Ministry announced that the Royal Air Force had destroyed at least fifty enemy aircraft on a single day and had put many more out of action. It is estimated that 400 German planes have been brought down since the war in the lowlands commenced.
