THE FINAL OUTCOME

Many people have an idea that the period of waiting! for the attack of Germany was time lost to Britain. Not 1940. so, the time was being devoted to manufacturing and assembling planes and tanks and other armaments, not only for the present defence but for the attack on Germany which will follow it.

Britain is not ready to drive into Germany. She will not be ready for months to come. She must have modern armaments. Meantime she will let time do her deadly in the Matter of the "Administration work. A NEW SPIRIT

Evidently there are still people in Prince Rupert who do not think the British can possibly win this war. These are the people who do not really know the British. One remembers the saying that the British people have not Handyman Home Service sense enough to know when they are licked.

Looking back, we are inclined to say that Dunkirk was the turning point in the war. It showed the British what they could do. It gave the air force its opportunity; to distinguish itself. From that point it has grown stronger and more useful each day.

Prior to Dunkirk the British were daily influenced by fifth columnists, by the acts of traitors and by defections. True the final surrender of France came after Dunkirk but it only cleared the air. It told the British! Empire that it must fight alone if it would survive and this it is now doing.

A new spirit has come over the British people everywhere. We do not refer only to the British in England, Ireland and Scotland but in the other parts of the Empire and in other countries, particularly in the United! States. The spirit of their fighting ancestors is being revived. They have their backs to the wall, fighting not only for their lives but for an ideal, the ideal of a free people, a free world, a better world. This is the spirit that wins. The Germans have overshot their mark and the period of decadence has already set in. There is now no longer need to fear for the outcome as long as we do our part in the great struggle.
