ANY MORE SURPRISES

This war has been full of surprises. Who would have thought a few weeks ago that France would be found fighting the battles of the German and Italian people? Any person suggesting it a month ago would have been thought crazy. Nobody today knows where Russia will stand a month from now. Then there is Japan. That country is a very uncertain quantity.

Other questions asked are as to how Germany plans to invade and try to destroy Britain. Doubtless, the plans have been made or are in course of preparation and the element of surprise will not likely be lacking.

HUGE PREPARATIONS

If in the next 100 days, to borrow an expression from one of the trans-Atlantic commentators, Britain can hold her main enemy down, the Empire will be able to throw into the scale such vast resources of airplanes, tanks and guns as to make a totalitarian victory next to impossible, says the Victoria Times. Thus if Hitler is compelled to go through another winter without a decisive victory over Britain in the "Battle of Britain"—and he will not win it—latent defeatism which the R.A.F. already is beginning to stir up among a large part of the German population may surge forth and seriously endanger the Nazi regime. Genius though he is, brilliant strategist though he has proved himself to be, it should always be remembered that Hitler does not possess a temperament equal to reverses. Napoleon stretched his communications too far; look at the map and see how extensive is the coastline over which the Swastika is flying.

HITLER'S VIEWS

It should not be imagined for one moment that Hitler is unaware or not apprehensive of his developing weakness, says the same paper. He is afraid of the consequences of mass air attacks on the vast collection of factories in the Ruhr and at those points at which he has stored fuel for his airplanes. Despite all the glamour of victory to date, the middle-aged German may be far from convinced of the certainty of ultimate success. He remembers that highly-spectacular things happened between 1914 and 1918 but that in the end German envoys were compelled to assume the role in which Hitler cast the envoys of the Petain government the other day.

It is conceivable, therefore, that the Fuehrer's besetting fear is his inability to divine the quality of civilian morale when those who went through the first Great War are confronted with large German cities laid waste—as they will be if the expected mass bombing on Britain is launched.

It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same.

PLAYED FOR FIVE HOURS

Brooklyn Dodgers Have To Play Twenty Innings To Retain National League Leadership

BOSTON, July 6: (CP)—Brooklyn Dodgers retained the leadership of the National League yesterday by defeating Boston Bees 5 to 2 in a twenty-inning game which lasted for five hours and twenty minutes. It was one of the longest games in big league history. The second-place Cincinnati Reds kept pace with a 5 to 4 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates. The third place New York Giants swamped the Phillies.

The first and second place Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers in the American League were idle. The third place Boston Red Sox won over the Washington Senators while the New York Yankees were defeated by Philadelphia Athletics. The Chicago White Sox defeated St. Louis Browns and ousted them from the leadership of the second division. The Washington Senators slipped into the basement below the Philadelphia Athletics.
