THE INDICTMENT OF WILLIAM MANSON AND THE McBRIDE GOVERNMENT

The Government has not extended the Workmen's Compensation Act to conform to modern legislation, and to remove the absurd anomalies in the same. The Government has taken no step to adopt a system of state insurance for the workmen. Our late member, the representative of a constituency of laborers and pioneers, has said not a single word on the floor of the House in their behalf.

THE AUTOCRACY.

We are ruled by two Caesars—democracy is receiving a bod/ blow—the principles that our fathers bled for are being transgressed at every step—the true voice of the electorate is being most violently suppressed. William Manson, who knows better, has countenanced, condoned and weakly defended it all. A change is due—a change is necessary to preserve our democracy and our political independence. Skeena Riding needs a man with moral fibre and qualities of independence such as it has sought and failed to find within the make-up of the man who now has represented it during the two years and a half that have passed.

PHONEY PROMISES

Characteristic Telegram From Premier Intended to Intimidate Electors

Premier McBride was afraid to face the people of Prince Rupert because he knew, as well as the gang know, that the charges against the government have not and can not be refuted.

At the close of the campaign he sends a promise telegram in a final attempt to help Silent Bill. McBride never sends telegrams to Rupert except at election time. He has no use for Rupert and its requirements. He, Dr. Young and Miller all got cold feet, and cancelled engagements to speak here. They were afraid to meet the people.

Welcome to Our City

On the 22nd of this month there was born to Mr. and Mrs. H. Smith of Seventh Ave., East, Prince Rupert, a splendid healthy daughter, the biggest and bonniest baby girl Dr. Tremayne ever clapped eyes on. That mother and baby are both doing well was the good news the proud father smilingly brought to the News this morning. Congratulations!

Every appropriation by the government is made with a view of strengthening the power of the two-man government. If

FEW FOR WILLIAM

Lakelse People Have Had a Surfeit of the Silent One.

T. G. Muller of Lakelse Lake, who is now in the city, says there will be very few, if any, votes for William Manson around Lakelse, for the reason that there is not a single settler that has not suffered either through the member or the local land office.

J. F. Ritchie arrived on the George.

J. M. Mitchel, representing the Cunard lines, arrived on the George to look after the interests of his company.

the first Irish parliament with an official residence on College Green, Dublin, and William Manson—"A voice: We have no use for him." We are going to send him to Victoria." Douglas did a real good stunt, as he always does, and even the conclusion of that little speech did not detract from his popularity.

Professor Hunter, in the absence of O. H. Nelson, who arrived later, gave an excellent solo on the Trombone. It was one of those touching, tear-inducing melodies so popular at an Irish wake. It made some of the audience sob for the fate of William.

Then the great event of the evening was brought on. Professor James Russell was introduced and preached the funeral sermon. It was an excellent paraphrase of the Chronicles of Exodus which were published in Truth. This didn't take very well, so Professor James Russell was recalled by Chairman Tite, and sang a comic ditty that the audience innocently mistook for a funeral dirge.

Chairman Tite, who is by no means wanting in the bump of humor, saw it was necessary to change the program and throw in something that would be at least more entertaining and amusing. He promptly called upon Mayor Newton. And the Mayor certainly did amuse the audience.

Mayor Newton began by deploring there were so many empty seats, but when they considered that there were so many counter attractions on that evening that they must compliment themselves upon the fact that there were so many in favor of the Manson Way. (Cheers.) They had been told that few in Prince Rupert were going to vote for William Manson; they had been told that few would vote for him in the district; this "great" meeting proved the contrary. (Cheers.)

He had hoped to go through this campaign without mentioning any candidate, but personal

CLEAR-CUT CLEAN POLITICS

cheers rang out lustily from the thronged house.

Chivalrous Offer. "The first speaker tonight," announced the chairman, "will be Mr. William Manson, or his representative."

With a gasp of surprise the audience realized the chivalry of the announcement. They waited with bated breath. No one appeared.

"I am sorry," said the chairman, "if Mr. Manson has not in person or by a representative seen fit to accept the invitation extended him." The audience cheered as Mr. Stork then announced himself as the next speaker, but the chairman was brief, and contented himself with announcing Dr. Clayton, who was received also with cheers.

Wm. Manson's Gail.

Speaking as a Conservative but with the bitterest condemnation of William Manson, Alderman Clayton got his audience warmed up from the start. He referred to the insufferable gail of William Manson in his campaign travels when he barefacedly made use of every government conveyance to get about the constituency in the face of the law, and the disapproving mutterings of rightly resentful settlers.

With bitter sarcasm Dr. Clayton pictured the saintly supporters of William Manson—specifying "the saintly faced editor of the Trombone"—amidst a shout of amused applause.

Speedily the meeting warmed up to the occasion, and speaker after speaker was introduced and given the fairest hearings with lively applause. Some of the hottest shots from the speeches snapped up by The Daily News burning from the speaker's lips are given, each one of them a keynote to the trend of the silent symphony of the polls tomorrow.

Mr. Facing All Ways.
