Colorful Pioneer of Skagway on Way to New York-To See Mae West Again

Martin Itjen, colorful long-moustached pioneer of the "Soapy" Smith and Gold Rush days and well known to all Alaska tourists as operator of the picturesque Skagway "street car," was here yesterday afternoon aboard the Princess Norah bound south. He is on his way for a trip to New York by way of the Panama Canal.

Five years ago the redoubtable Martin, who is well along in years but neither looks or acts it, encountered Mae West while on a trip to California and got a lot of publicity . out of it. Asked of he would be go- Daily advertising m the Daily ing up to see Mae again this trip, News is sure to bring daily re-Martin gave a far away look and an sults.

the screen was still on his date book. Martin didn't know how long he would be away except that he would be back in time for the tourist season. He has a good thing in the Skagway "street car"—there are two now-and he makes more than an easy living during the three vacation months of summer by the pleasant means of driving the tourists to the various points of interest around Skagway and telling them stories of the early days.
