MUST WIN WAR

LONDON-Oliver Stanley, British Secretary for War, says that the Navy and Air Force has proven its worth and now the Army is ready to do its part. "We cannot afford to lose this war, or even to make a draw of it," said Stanley. "That would only mean we would have to fight it again in a few years. Every Briton must do his bit and the sooner he does it the sooner the war will be over."

TO BOMBARD NARVIK

STOCKHOLM, April 22: (CP)—British warnings that German-held Narvik would be bombarded and advising residents to leave were broadcast three times today. Citizens were given until 3 p.m. (6 a.m. Pacific Standard Time) to leave the town.

Allied forces, supported effectively by their naval and military arms, are now fighting side by side with the Norwegians and it is apparent that definite progress is being made towards the objective of driving the Nazi invaders out of Norway. Two major battles are in progress today -one about forty-five miles northeast of Trondheim in
