Local Teacher Tells About
England Before and After War; Gives Vivid Picture

Miss M. Hartin, speaking before the Prince Rupert Parent Teachers' Association meeting last night, painted a vivid and interesting word picture of her experiences during her year in England as exchange teacher. Arriving there before the declaration of war she was able to tell of England preparing for the conflict as well as during its course.

Miss Hartin told of the plans for evacuating 600,000 school children, 450,000 eventually taking advantage of the plan. She was fortunate in being sent to Oxfordshire to a village not far from Oxford. Owing to the over-crowding of the village schools only half a day was spent in the schoolroom, thus allowing much time for rambling along the English lanes. Her pupils being East End children were given the opportunity for the first time in their lives of enjoying the delights of the English countryside.

At Christmas she was recalled to London. But this time she found that city very different with its sandbags piled high about the buildings, barbed wire entanglements, trenches, airplane traps, huge balloon barrages and blackouts. Great precautions were being taken to protect the people from flying splinters of glass, every householder being compelled to paste strips of brown paper over all windows.

Although the country was rationed for butter, bacon, meat and sugar, there was plenty of everything else including all kinds of bread and tinned goods.

Miss Hartin was unable to see much of Britain's art treasures and objects of historic interest for they had been either removed or covered with sandbags.

She paid a tribute to the school children for, although often bombed during the night, they reported as usual for school next morning. She said this was the spirit of the nation.

Everywhere in England she both saw and heard only praise for the Dominions. It is generally felt that with their assistance the Empire must come out on top.

During the evening delightful pianoforte duets were rendered by Miss J. MacLean and Miss R. Nelson.

Later serving of refreshments allowed the members the opportunity of informal visiting.

Business Session
Resuming its activities after the summer vacation, the Association was earlier in regular business session last evening at the Borden Street School. Mrs. George Hill presided. There was a very good attendance.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. N. M. Carter and her assistants and those teachers who made the summer vacation a financial success.

After hearing the treasurer's report it was decided to distribute the funds as follows:

Booth Memorial High School, $20.
King Edward School, $20.
Borden Street School, $20.
Seal Cove School, $5.

It was decided to hold a telephone bazaar on October 25. Mrs. George Hill will be the general contractor to be assisted by Mrs. O. Young, Mrs. D. R. Barclay, Mrs. F. Glass, Mrs. N. M. Carter, Mrs. S. A. Kieback, Mrs. G. E. Moore and Mrs. J. McRae.

No "Parley Voo"
To Armentieres

Inspiration Of Old War Song, Now
In England, Hears Nothing
From Her Kin

BARNES, Eng., Sept. 19: (CP)—Mrs. Albert Rogers of Barnes, who was toasted by soldiers of the First Great War as "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," has had no word for months of her father and sisters who live in the Northern French town the song made famous.

When the war started in 1914 she was 13-year old Mlle. Simone Duretz living with her parents at Armentieres. After the war she married a Royal Engineer, Albert Rogers, who was billeted in the town, where her father kept a large cafe.

THRILLING,
COLORFUL

Romance of Turf in Technicolor Is "Maryland." Showing at Capitol Theatre

Thrilling, romantic and beautiful is one way in which the technicolor production "Maryland," featured on the screen of the Capitol Theatre here tonight and Friday, is described. Walter Brennan heads an outstanding featured cast which includes Fay Bainter, Brenda Joyce, John Payne, Charlie Ruggles, Hattie McDaniel and Marjorie Weaver.

An absorbing story centers on a mother's aversion to horses after her husband has been thrown and killed during a fox hunt. Despite her inhibitions, her son becomes an expert horseman and, to further complicate the situation, falls in love with the granddaughter of a horse trainer. The romance and traditions of the turf are used in the development of a very human story.

The story of two spirited young people in love is climaxed with the running of the spectacular American steeplechase, the Maryland Hunt Cup race.

Each of the popular members of the cast have roles well suited to their particular talents.

Board of Directors of Prince Rupert
General Hospital Says Farewell to Retiring Lady Supt.

Members of the Prince Rupert General Hospital board of directors, at a specially called meeting yesterday afternoon in the board room at the hospital, said official farewell to the lady superintendent, Miss Jean Harrison, R.N. (now Mrs. R. H. Bedford), who is leaving after fifteen years of service, and met the new lady superintendent, Miss Margaret Jamieson, R.N.

To Mrs. Bedford the presentation was made of a handsome silver serving tray, inscribed with the names of the board and the managing secretary. The presentation was made by the acting chairman, G. P. Tinker, who referred to the retiring superintendent's long period of efficient, capable and conscientious service. She had given of her best for the hospital and would be much missed. However, long life and happiness was wished her by all in her new sphere and it would be the hope that in the future she would find occasion to revisit the city and the hospital.

In replying, Mrs. Bedford said that some of the happiest days of her life had been spent in Prince Rupert and she would long cherish pleasant memories of her work and associations here. Her heart would always be in the local hospital in which she would maintain a keen interest. She hoped that it would be possible for her to pay visits to Prince Rupert in the future.

Mrs. Bedford will be leaving Friday night to make her future home in the San Francisco-Bay region where her husband is located.

British Officers Returning To Shoulder Strap To Support
Revolvers

LONDON, Sept. 19: (CP)—Sam Browne is coming back into the British Army. All officers are being issued with the heavy belt and shoulder strap to come with army sartorial demands—to provide support for revolvers. Webbing equipment was found to be adequate support but reported the experts didn't like the appearance of the webbing officers' uniforms and they decided revolver holsters dragged low when hooked on to the belt without the shoulder strap.
