Mr. Phillips reminded his audience that they must not forget that their parents had made great sacrifices, endured all the hardships of pioneers and carried all the weight of development. > Delineates Prospects Mr. Phillips went on in a delineation of the many projects sponored by the Boys' and Girls' Clubs which give them special training that was useful if they remained on the farm. These projects include calf clubs, swine, sheep, poultry, root crops, grain and seed growing. He stated that lit was also intended that club work fit in with the general farm program of the district but that it was quite obvious that in most districts there has been little study of a definite farm program.

In the Junior Live Stock Clubs training was given in care, management and feeding of livestock. In the crop clubs training was given in the preparation of soil and cultivation. Most important of all, all club members were required to keep careful records showing whether or not a profit had been made in the operation of the project. Club members were required to carry on judging competitions and the winners of local competitions were eligible to take part in the provincial elimination contests. The winners of the Provincial Judging Competitions were given guests of the Canadian Council on Boys' and Girls' Club work. Here they competed in judging contests with teams from every part of Canada and it was not surprising that, when they returned to their homes, they would have acquired much information which would be useful in the development of agriculture in their own districts. The success of this work, of course, depended to a large extent on local support.

The organization of the clubs in a community was under the direct L supervision of the District Agriculturist but it was more than a one man job. It is necessary to have the support of all local organizations and in the past, they had had magnificent support, speaking generally, particularly from the Farmers' Institutes, Women's Institutes, local fall fairs and Boards of Trade.

Possibly the most important factor in carrying through any of these projects was the local organizer. This was usually some publie spirited citizen, whether farmer, school-teacher or business man, who devoted a great deal of his time to organizing and seeing that the juniors received proper train-There was no remuneration
