CANADIAN LABOR VIEW

The Canadian Unionist, representing the view of the leaders of the Canadian Congress of Labor, has the following editorial article in its recent issue:

"The Russian attack upon Finland was an unjustifiable use of brute force to subjugate a small nation; but the German invasion of Denmark and Norway seems even more reprehensible. Hitler had made a non-aggression treaty with Denmark; he had on many occasions professed friendship toward that small neighbor, but he did not hesitate to overwhelm her territory, so as to obtain a base for operations against Norway, and subsequently Great Britain.

"This latest outrage should not, however, obscure the fact that it is one of a long series. Hitler's path is strewn with broken pledges—the Rhineland, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Memel, Poland, all have been victims of ruthless barbarism, of unscrupulous disregard of promises, of a callous disrespect for the opinions of the world. But Hitler, as Alfred Duff-Cooper pointed out in his remarkable and inspiring St. George's Day address, is only a symbol of the German people; they have given him their support as they gave it to the Kaiser in 1914. After the Armistice as he said, "they came whining and grovelling to us, claiming that they were not responsible; that they had been forced into war by their ruler, and he hoped that the Allies would not be taken in again.

"But the spirit of imperialistic aggression, brutal and devoid of conscience, which animated Germany in the First Great War, was mild in comparison with that which Hitler and his gangsters have evoked in Germany during the past decade. They have deliberately and with characteristic German thoroughness, inculcated in the children and youth of the nation a lust for power, a maniacal egotism, a distorted sense of race-superiority, and a sadistic spirit of cruelty, almost unparalleled in the history of civilization. They have destroyed ethical standards, rooted out respect for justice and decency, and perverted the ideals of youth. No form of religion, Catholic or Protestant, has escaped attack; Jews and Christians have been persecuted and imprisoned, and every element of fairness, or regard for the rights of others, of humanitarianism, has been eliminated from the minds of the young and impressionable."

Competition For Anglers

Joe Scott, manager of the Kaien Hardware, announces a competition which should prove of interest to local anglers this season. For the largest cut-throat or rainbow trout caught on the fly between May 24 and Labor Day a six-ounce rod is being put up. For the largest cut-throat or rainbow caught on a spinner, a 3 1/2 inch single reel is being offered. The fish will have to be presented for weighing but the word of the fishermen will be taken for the type of gear used.

GERMAN DRIVE AGAINST PARIS

pendent today went so far as to suggest that the Germans could expect no further lightning victories such as they have had during the past week, that the blitzkrieg directed at the heart of France (Paris) was showing signs of failing with Hitler shooting his bolt, using up his gasoline, killing thousands of his soldiers and reducing the confidence of his people.

New Commander-in-Chief

Meanwhile there is a general expectation that under the new supreme commander-in-chief, the 73-year old Maxime Weygand who was yesterday designated to replace Maurice Gamelin, a fierce counter-offensive will be launched by the Allies to once and for all halt the Nazi drive.

Anxiety for the Allied cause is definitely diminishing today in consideration of the easing up in the drive together with the realization that Hitler has yet to meet the main French army, that the large body of British forces has not even left England yet and that certain Nazi attacks which have been anticipated, such as aerial blitzkreigs of Paris and London, have failed to materialize. After days of extreme anxiety, particularly over the week-end, Paris, in particular, began to breathe more easily today.

Late yesterday the French claimed they had inflicted the first setback on the enemy since the drive from the lowlands commenced, using seventy-ton tanks together with light artillery to drive back the enemy for a distance of nine miles and regain control of both sides of the Oise River, hurling the Germans back with the counter-offensive at the right of the bulge.

The German drive was being held at St. Quentin and the French had recaptured a number of villages and positions about ten miles from the Belgian frontier.

Fierce fighting was still going on in the Franco-Belgian frontier country but, in London also, the British War Office declared that the German drive in Belgium had been definitely stopped by British and Belgian forces holding firm in new positions in face of heavy Nazi pressure. The latter was the report to the War Office from British general field headquarters.

At the time of this announcement the Germans in Northern France were still driving along the Aisne and Oise Rivers in the movement which around St. Quentin must divide or deflect either in the direction of Paris or the Channel. Today it appeared that Hitler had chosen the latter course which would cut off Antwerp and that part of Belgium in which the Allies are still operating.

There were contradictory claims yesterday as to the possession of St. Quentin. The Germans claimed to have crossed the Somme and captured the city. The French denied this although admitting that the battle was going on in its vicinity. The Germans claimed to be advancing along a sixty-mile front.

In Three Sectors

Last night the battle in the three main sectors was described as follows:

Maginot Line—Little action.
St. Quentin—Germans still advancing.
Coastal Belgium and France—Fluid.

One report from Paris last night was that German tanks were crunching over German dead piled five feet high at some points, illustrating the relentlessness of the Nazis in the drive to capture new ground regardless of cost even to themselves.

From Berlin last night emanated a claim that the Germans had taken 110,000 prisoners not including those in Belgium.
