With Hitler, First Lord Of Admiralty Says In Address—Sees Victory Now Taking Form

LONDON, Nov. 4: - "Do not think for a moment that peace terms with Hitler are possible," declared Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, in speaking Saturday. "Let those who would toy with this idea consider VICTORIA, Nov. 4: (CP)—Prem-Hitler's undertakings with other age, resolution and duty be our watchword and, even though the struggle may be long and hard, ultimate victory will be ours."

There were grounds for confidence but not for easy optimism, PEACE PLAN declared the First Lord who spoke of the proven superiority of Britons in the air, the fact that neither Germany or Italy dared to match naval strength with British in combat, that the highly trained British army forces were straining for action and that production of munitions and war materials had LONDON, Nov. 4.—London Sun- reached a point far beyond ex-

Shipping losses, it was true, had been heavy of late but supplies were being maintained and the forces > were being kept well furnished. Mr. Alexander incidentally disclosed that British forces had been landed on Greek territory to aid that country in its war against Italy. He did not disclose where the landing had been made.

Victory In Sight The form of victory was already beginning to show itself, said Mr. Alexander. Great Britain was stronger than ever today. It had lost none of its forces abroad. There had been no invasion atboat. Dale is understood to have tempt although plans had been made to give the invaders a fitting reception. British bombing of enemy military objectives had been immeasurably more effective than the German. The British eagles had shown themselves to be far superior in the air. Land forces, which had been greatly added to, were straining at the leash. Production of the sinews of war had reached a volume far beyond what had been considered possible. There had been an intensified enemy u-boat campaign but measures would be found to offset it. Meanwhile, the German navy was reluctant to come forth and do battel. The Italians were evidently determined to stay unscathed.

Referring to the fifty United States destroyers, for which he expressed gratitude, Mr. Alexander told of the efficiency and fine condition down to the last detail in which they had been turned over. More such vessels would be wel-
