BOCHE WILL GET IT IN NECK WHEN INVASION COMES

In summary therefore, in the air, the Boche just can't take it, and he's certainly getting it. As for what we're doing to him over the other side—well, censorship would not let me say more than you can read in the papers, and what I read in yours is really quite the wrong story. I wish you could sit in my chair here a bit, or come round my station and get the real story.

Must Get Together "Meanwhile the English speaking peoples must inevitably get more and more together, and may the good work you are doing in this regard prosper. Someone will have to tell the Japs where they get off sooner or later, although one imagines that their latest efforts are born more of exasperation at their inability to fix China and their growing home troubles than due to their being flushed with success."

"On the whole, therefore, although we want every bit of help you can get for us, you can take it that we are on a good wicket and that it gets more to our liking every day. As for morale—well I wish you could hear what my lads say when I threaten to send any of them back to the training units for a spell of rest off operations. They send their nights all over Germany and do as they like there for all the Boche can do to stop them and you can take it from me that what they do is more and more effective. As for our losses, they are so negligible, they do not reach the peace time weather and accident losses for the same amount of flying."

"Again, many, many thanks to you both for your offer to take Jill and the kiddie. It is a nice comfortable feeling to have that at the back of one if things get tough. Meanwhile you can rest assured that everything goes fine here and, as for rationing, well we haven't yet reached the stage that any doctor would advise us to get down to for our own benefit!"

Just say—"Three Two please."

Canadian Red Cross officials in England are working night and day in their emergency efforts on behalf of people rendered homeless by German air raids.

A cable received at Red Cross headquarters in Toronto states that thousands of blankets, articles of clothing and tins of food are being distributed daily. The cable, signed by the overseas commissioner Colonel George Nasmith of Toronto, whose office is right in the heart of London, ended "all well and cheery close."

Preparing itself for such an emergency the Canadian Red Cross has already shipped 45,000 blankets to England. Other shipments will go forward immediately.

"Similarly thousands of dollars worth of clothing and canned food had been shipped from Canada to England during the past months and had been stored in Canadian Red Cross warehouses in England for emergency use," Mrs. Plumpre said.

"With the support of the people of Canada the Canadian Red Cross Society is doing everything possible to alleviate the suffering of the people of Britain," she concluded.
