Stage Set For Three Day Celebration---Full Bill Of Sport and Entertainment

The chief aim of the Fall Carnival in Prince Rupert next week is to raise money to assist financing the proposed civic centre. Proceeds will all be invested in war savings certificates or bonds until such time as required for building purposes. Patrons will thus help the civic centre and the war effort at the same time. With the exception of the carnival novelties, all merchandise will be obtained from local merchants and even the carnival supplies, which it is necessary to obtain outside, will be handled by a local firm.

Other attractions backing up the carnival attractions, which comprise a collection entirely novel to the people of this district, are a number of exhibits just as novel. THE BIG CARNIVAL

Next week a number of local organizations have combined to put on a big carnival for the purpose of raising money for the civic centre fund, these funds be invested in Dominion Government war certificates until such time as there is money enough on hand to commence construction of the centre.

There has been a little silent opposition to the carnival from those who think all energies should be turned to the war. In this connection it is pointed out that the net proceeds of the carnival will go to financing the

The following week it is understood an outside circus will be in town, mopping up any spare money that may be left. This has been the turning point in favor of the carnival and has influenced most people to give it their unqualified support.

It is also pointed out that providing recreational facilities for young man is war work of the best kind.

In view of this situation we feel we can ask for the support of the whole community in this effort of the younger people of the city. They evidently know what they want and are out to get it if they possibly can.
