C.C.F. New Leader - - -

The new federal leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, M. J. Coldwell, member for Rosetown-Biggar, is not at all new to the position. He has been prac- FOR SALE-Household goods. 805 tically leader for some time. A young man, he seems to have a slightly less fanatical outlook on life than J. S. Woodsworth. He is more a man of the world and less the parson.

Most people admired the sincerity of the retiring leader and regretted seeing him retire from the position because he had become something of an institution. While FOR RENT-Room in Daily News Mr. Coldwell is less picturesque, he is likely to meet with greater success in making his party a vital force in the Dominion.

Leader Resigns - - -

At no time have we felt very enthusiastic about the leadership of John L. Lewis, head of the Congress on Industrial Organization, but his resignation indicates that, FOR RENT-5 room furnished in one respect at any rate, he has been a man of his word. | apartment, apply Box 47, Daily His leadership indicated that he understood the weaknesses of human nature and traded on them, building up a! strong organization and drawing therefrom a salary higher than most politicians or industrial leaders. Evidently, OWNER of grey Stetson hat lost he thought he could swing a great deal of the labor vote away from President Roosevelt but he overated his strength and influence, the mass of the C.I.O. followers voting the opposite way from their leader.

It is quite possible the leftist labor party may now break up or amalgamate with the older organization.
