Captain Colthurst Tells Japanese of Being in Prison With Churchill in South Africa

A copy of the Japan Chronicle just to hand tells of a recent visit to Kobe of Captain John Bowen-Colthurst, who contested this riding in the last provincial election and who since that time has been living at Sooke, B. C. He has recently been visiting north China on a sight seeing trip.

Interviewed in Kobe, Captain Colhurst is reported to have said:

"My own hope is that through compromise and mutual understanding it will be possible for two great Empires, the Japanese and the British, to recover their old footing of friendship. As Sir Robert Craigie pointed out in his speech the other day in our history and our traditions as well as in our geographical similarities, we have much in common."

In an interview with the same paper Captain Colthurst told of being a prisoner in South Africa along with Right Hon. Winston Churchill just before Churchill escaped. He told of the escape, how he bluffed the sentries, hopped a train and, not knowing a word of the language of the natives or the Boers, managed to get away into Portuguese territory.

The Captain also told the newspaperman of his admiration for Mr. Churchill, giving as one example how his hero had galloped up to sixty armed Boers, any one of whom could have shot him and one of whom nearly did. A few minutes later the Union Jack was hoisted amid cheers. He said he saw Lieutenant Grant in Thibet win the Victoria Cross and other epic deeds at Mons but he always thought Churchill's gallop was the bravest deed of all.

Albert Farrow, steamboat inspector, is paying one of his periodical visits to the city on official duties, having arrived from Vancouver on the Prince George yesterday morning. He will return south tonight.

MAIL FOR OVERSEAS

No Chance Taken With Slow Transport—Posties Training At Ottawa For Service Abroad

OTTAWA, May 2: (CP)—Postmasters for Canada's overseas forces receive their training in a hard school. The men who will dole out the mail and parcels containing goodies from home to soldiers serving in France and England must serve an apprenticeship at the Base Army Post Office in Ottawa.

It is through that office that all mail consigned to troops overseas must pass and there the men of the postal corps come up against practically all the problems they may meet in the army postal service anywhere.

The base Post Office in Ottawa is at once a busy centre of active work and a training depot from which drafts will be sent overseas as required for the postal needs of Canada's expanding overseas army.

Train Under Veteran

A staff of 30 postal corps men under Major G. W. Ross, experienced post office official and veteran of the Postal Corps in the last war, trains for overseas by handling some 20 tons of mail a week.

Here they have to straighten out all the tangles which arise from improper addressing of mail as best they can. Sometimes they fail because the sender neglects to put on the envelope the regimental number of the man to whom it is addressed or his unit.

Each battalion, battery, or other unit of the forces overseas has a separate bag for its parcels, newspapers and letters in the base Post Office. As the mail is sorted it is dropped into its proper bag and the bag is sealed and sent off to an eastern port.

There it must wait for a suitable ship. Mail for the troops is not sent on slow freighters. Only ships which have the best chance of eluding attack by the enemy are used. So it is that sometimes a ship may carry an accumulation of several days' mail. That means occasional delays but it is better than risking complete loss.

Alternative Address

On parcels of consumable goods, such as cigarettes, tobacco, candy and other foods, the postal corps likes to see an alternative address. Tobacco companies which ship gifts at special rates give the officer commanding the addressee's unit as the alternative address.

Then, if the addressee cannot be located, the officer commanding may distribute the cigarettes or tobacco among the men of the unit. If no alternative address is given and the man for whom the parcel is intended cannot be found the parcel must be returned to the sender who will then be presented with a bill for return mailing charges. If it contains cigarettes they will probably be dried out and worthless by the time they get back to Canada whereas, when the alternative address is given, some soldier overseas can enjoy them.

HIS MAJESTY COLLECTS THE TICKETS

You might call this the photograph of a faux pas. The British soldier at left had just arrived on leave from France. Rushing to take the train for London, he shoved his ticket into the hand of the man in blue uniform with gold-braided cap who stood at the platform entrance. Then he looked into the face of the "ticket collector" and snapped to the salute. The "collector" was King George. The King grinned broadly, tore out the soldier's ticket from the book and handed it back to the stunned Tommy.

War Conferences At Indian Table

Important Talks Held Over Choice Antique From Ranee's Palace

LONDON, May 2: (CP)—Britain's army council holds its frequent deliberations over a much-travelled table that stood in a Ranee's palace in India until an Irish regiment took it after capturing Jhansi fortress in 1858 in the Indian mutiny.

A recently-inserted silver plaque on the table proclaims it was "presented on trust to the army council by the officers of the Prince of Wales Leinster Regiment (Royal Canadians) on disbandment, July 31, 1922." The Canadian connection is explained by the Leinsters being amalgamated with a regiment raised in Canada during the Indian Mutiny.

Presentation of the table came when, in common with other Southern Irish forces, the regiment was disbanded in 1922 on creation of the Irish Free State (Eire). The Prince of Wales, colonel-in-chief of the Leinsters, presented the table to the army council.

Steam Rollered Says Labor M.P.

LONDON, May 2: (CP) —J. L. Hollins, Labor M.P. for Silvertown, was pertinent when he gave his first impression of the House of Commons in his maiden speech.

Mr. Hollins said he had sat hearing fine speeches—pathetic speeches—from the Labor benches, while fewer than four members of the government side were present, excluding the Front Bench. Then at 11 p.m., after the speeches had gone on six hours, a "crowd began to come in like rabbits from their bolt holes," and people who did not know what was in the speeches went into the lobby and "steam-rollered the whole lot." "It does not strike me that that is a very democratic procedure," Mr. Hollins concluded.
