CHAMBER PLANNING FOR YEAR

ported and the Junior Chamber had taken an important part in the successful carnival held this fall for that project. The retiring president expressed appreciation for the co-operation that had been accorded by the executive and members and bespoke a continuation of same for his successor. It would also be desirable to add new members.

New President Heard

The new president, Mr. German, promised to devote time and energy to the work of the Chamber but stressed the necessity of the members doing likewise. While others were on military service, it was a duty to "keep the home fires burning." Several worthy enterprises had been given support during the past year. He hoped that the civic centre campaign would be carried on.

W. M. Watts, president of the Senior Chamber of Commerce, referred to the good work of the Junior Chamber, something of which the Senior Chamber was appreciative. The coming year would require the best efforts in community work and war activities. He hoped the Junior Chamber would carry on efficiently and successfully accomplish its objectives. In this it would have the best wishes of the Senior Chamber.

Arthur Brooksbank, secretary of the Senior Chamber, joined Mr. Watts in extending good wishes to the Junior Chamber.

The new vice-president, Alf Rivett, and secretary, T. J. Williams, were also heard. Mr. Williams urged members of the Junior Chamber to consider the advisability of joining the Home Guards who were preparing themselves for what might be very important work.

The treasurer's report for the past year, presented by the retiring treasurer, George L. Rorie, revealed the financial position of the Junior Chamber.

There was correspondence from the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada regarding the national convention and the year's program.

It was decided that regular meetings of the Junior Chamber would henceforth be held on the first Friday instead of the first Tuesday of the month.

New Members

New members were elected in the persons of Louis M. Felsenthal, Gavin Hume, Ted Smith and Harold Ivarson.

Guests at last night's dinner were W. M. Watts, Arthur Brooksbank, Louis Felsenthl, Ted Smith, Harold Ivarson, Gavin Hume, Fred Conrad, Ted Hardcastle and Fusilier Richards.

ROYAL AIR FORCE BASES ON PACIFIC COAST

the enemy is destroyed or others arrive to take part in the "reception."

Presuming enemy craft had penetrated the outer ring of defences of the Pacific patrols, had entered the inside sea lanes, attack aircraft, dive bombers and naval vessels would go into action. Coastal batteries would find a job to do in "spotting" the enemy for the land guns.

All areas within range of the coastal batteries are shown in charts marked off by numbered squares. The aircraft observer is in radio contact with the battery. "Enemy position 45-75." On land gunnery officers swing the big muzzle into position. A shell comes up by elevator, is loaded. "Fire!" and the big gun barks, recoils and the shell is on its way.

If off the mark, the observer in the aircraft gives the correction, again the coastal battery barks, a geyser of water spouts up over ship's bow and bridge, to the accompaniment of a deafening explosion which rends steel plates of her sides.

Artillery fire and dive bombing continue until the enemy craft is destroyed or surrenders.

Various Activities

Current activities of R.C.A.F. stations of Western Air Command in British Columbia include not only routine bomber reconnaissance patrols, but dive bombing and fighter patrols.

The dive bomber, if a landplane, is loaded on the runway; if a seaplane it is launched, and a bomb-loading tender puts out to fill the bomb racks. The plane takes off, climbs in wide circles and lines up the target 2,000 feet below. Down goes the nose of the plane in a 45 degree power dive, increasing to a screaming speed and flattening out at 1000 feet as the bomb is released.

As the dive bomber speeds on its way, a puff of smoke billows up from the target, witness of its accurate aim.

Several miles from the base, away from habitation, an aircraft roars along, trailing behind it a target drogue of cloth like a wind sock. Speedy fighters wheel, dive and climb, attacking the trailing target with chattering machine guns, perfecting their skill against the day when it will be put to the supreme test.

At any of the bases under Western Air Command keen-eyed young Canadians from all parts of the Dominion man the aircraft that are the first line of defence for life lines of the British Empire's commerce reaching out from Pacific shores.

Airmen in the hangars and workshops keep those aircraft in fighting trim, carefully checking motors and controls, overhauling engines, fuselage and airframe.

Squads drill with rifles on the parade ground, become proficient at target practice, while machine guns are hammering at targets in the butts. Trim young fellows in airforce blue stand guard at appointed places with fixed bayonets, against any attempt to interfere with this aerial defence of the west coast.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Montgomery - Fritz Nuptials Of Outstanding Interest

A very pretty wedding of outstanding interest in this city took place Thursday at 8 p.m. at the home of Capt. George Fritz and the late Mrs. Fritz, 510 Sixth Avenue West, when their only daughter, Margaret Evelyn, was united in marriage to Raynor Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Montgomery, formerly of this city but now residing in New Westminster.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a Venetian lace gown in shamrock and rose pattern, cut on Princess lines with a train and a short bolero jacket with long sleeves. Her finger tip veil of Swiss net, embroidered in silver, dropped from a cornet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Hollywood roses and tulle ribbon. Later the bride's bouquet was placed on her mother's grave.

The bride's only attendant, Miss Tona Blain, wore a dress of peach silk jersey, cut on simple lines, the pockets and sleeves corded in the same color. She had a barreau of matching jersey and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The groom was attended by Len Griffiths.

The ceremony was performed by the Very Rev. Dean Gibson of St. Andrew's Cathedral beneath an arch of fall flowers and foliage. Peter Lien presided at the piano and Mrs. J. H. McLeod sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

The guests were received by Mrs. A. Barbe, sister of the groom, and Captain Fritz.

The congratulations and best wishes of the many assembled friends were received by the bridal couple beneath the same arch where they exchanged their marriage vows.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Dean Gibson and was responded to by the groom. Capt. Dan Larsen proposed the toast to the bridesmaid and it was responded to by the groomsman.

Mrs. O. A. Johnson and Mrs. J. R. Elfert presided at the urns and Mrs. J. Clavering supervised the tea table. The serviteurs were Mrs. E. W. Johnson, Mrs. L. Griffiths, Mrs. W. J. Richards, Mrs. Flora Gadiner and the Misses Cathie Eastman, Lillian Davies, Lillian Vacher, Johanah Johansen, Doris Webster, Cissy Armstrong and Nora Rudderham.

After the bride cut the beautifully decorated wedding cake in the customary way, it was served by Mrs. Dan Larsen.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery sailed on the Prince Rupert for a honeymoon trip in the south.

For travelling the bride wore a moss green feather wool crepe dress beneath a brown muskrat coat, with a brown off-the-face Stetson hat with accessories to match and a corsage of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery are well known in this city, both were born and educated here. Mrs. Montgomery was a member of the District Forester's office of the provincial government and Mr. Mongomery is associated with the Armour Salvage Company. On their return from the south, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery will reside at 510 Sixth Avenue West.
