It should be safe to sow beans now. Broad beans may be sown in February but the more tender kidney beans, wax beans, scarlet runners or other tender varieties would be in danger of being frozen if they were above ground now. Peas of all kinds are quite safe as they stand a lot of frost.

What has happened to the birds this year? Usually they are leaving about this time. I have heard people say it is quite safe to sow small seeds after May 10 as the mess up the flower beds.
