Communications Being Reopened Which May Raise Siege of Leningrad—Berlin Says Weather Is Responsible For Move.

LONDON, Nov. 7: (CP)—A Russian counter-attack on the Volokolamsk sector appears to be developing into a powerful offensive which may completely reopen the Moscow-Leningrad communications and relieve the siege of Leningrad, informed sources said tonight.

LONDON, Nov. 7: (CP)—A German retreat was reported today in the Volokolamsk sector before Moscow today while London observers speculated on the possible British plans for the establishment of a second fighting front. The Red Army has driven German armored units from position after position in an area 65 miles northwest of Moscow said war despatches as a London source said plans for a second front were "ready to be put into effect when the time was considered opportune."

MOSCOW, Nov. 7: (CP)—Joseph Stalin today gave Hitler "maybe a year" before Hitlerite Germany must burst under the weight of her own crimes, in an address on the 24th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

Stalin said that all Russia was engaged in a single fighting campaign with inexhaustible supplies of manpower, adding that Germany, counting on the Red Army cracking after the first blow, badly miscalculated. Salamander Is Picked Up On City Sidewalk

Will Be Cured and Added to Museum Collection Here.

Yesterday, N. M. Campbell of the Summit Apartments, picked up a salamander on the sidewalk outside the Royal Bank on Third Avenue. He thinks it must have come down with the rain, but there seem to be many doubters of the theory. It was a dark colored creature about eight inches long, half of which is tail. The little chap was very drowsy, seemingly about to hibernate for the winter. He is now to become a specimen at the museum by the help of the staff of the Fisheries Experimental station and the courtesy of Dr. Neal Carter and E. R. Siddaway.

QUOTAS AIRMEN LEAVING

Regular Contingents of Training Plan Graduates Leaving for Service Overseas.

By FRANK FLAHERTY Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 7: (CP)—Men in air force blue crowd the trains leading to eastern Canadian ports as the schools of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan graduate increasing numbers of pilots observers and wireless operators-air gunners for service overseas.

A little more than a year ago the first class trained under the plan received their wings at No. 1 Service Flying Training School, Camp Borden. Shortly after that the first classes of observers and wireless operator-air gunners received the single winged badges indicating proficiency in their trades.

Now, a year after the plan schools reached small-scale production, wing presentations are almost a daily occurrence somewhere in the nation-wide system of air training schools operated by the Royal Canadian Air Force. As each school discharges its monthly quota of trained men they find their way, after a brief embarkation leave, to the trains leading to the eastern Canadian ports where they take ship for the scenes of battles across the Atlantic.

Operate 90 Units

Where 34 schools and units of the plan operated a year ago, 90 operate now. In the fall of 1939, when the war started, the Royal Canadian Air Force was stepping up its peace-time training program and in December of that year the governments of Australia, New Zealand, Great Britain and Canada joined in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan agreement.

The first of the network of schools called for by the plan opened at the end of April, 1940. Schools operating now, with two number a year ago in brackets, are as follows:

- 26 elementary flying training schools (12); 16 service flying training schools (3); 10 air observer schools (3); eight bombing and gunnery schools (1); four wireless schools (2); two air navigation schools (1); six initial training schools (2); 15 manning depots (3); and 13 miscellaneous units (7).

In addition to the schools operated under the plan an increasing number of purely British schools are establishing in Canada. This movement was just getting under way in the fall of 1941 after the fall of France made it desirable to move France made it desirable to move as much as possible of British air training activity out of range of enemy bombers. At first only advanced units came to Canada to occupy schools and airbases prepared for them by the R.C.A.F. Now British schools of all types are settling here.

Strength of 80,000

The air personnel engaged in the B.C.A.T.P. numbers more than 80,000 officers and men as compared with 22,863 a year ago. Both figures include aircrew in training and instructional, mechanical and administrative staffs of the various schools. They do not include air force personnel of the home war establishment guarding Canadian coasts or Canadians serving overseas either in Canadian formations or with the Royal Air Force, graduates of the plan to date.

The number of trainees at any given time, the number finishing month by month and the number
