£50,000 From Canada to the Queen

Clement Attlee, the Lord Privy Seal, flew this cheque for £50,000 across the Atlantic and handed it to Her Majesty on behalf of the Queen's Canadian Fund. In a cable to the directors of the fund, the Queen said: "I send my warmest thanks to all who have contributed to this magnificent sum." The cheque worth $220,000 goes to the Lord Mayor's National Air Raid Distress Fund.

Various experiments have been made seeking a commercial use for these marine lions. Some time ago a British firm tried to manufacture gloves and similar articles from leather made from sea lion skins. The outbreak of war has temporarily halted this scheme. MILLING GIANT SHAFT

The huge shaft of a marine engine gets final adjustments on a giant lathe in a C plant. Enormous in size, the shaft is as crooked as a cork-screw, yet crooked with complet symmetry. It must be milled and polished until the slightest pressure from one of the cylinder heads will start it revolving when the motor is started up.
