From time to time during the winter and during last autumn the Germans have been sending out weather airplanes for the purpose of studying weather trends over Britain. These planes are operated by scientists who do nothing else but advise as to the best time and place for, the proposed invasion attempt. The time chosen for this bold gesture, if it is ever made, will be chosen just as much by the flying weather bureaux as by the German commanders.

Henri Phillipe Petain, Marshal of France, still remains one of the enigmas of the present war. Years ago he was thought to be losing his mental alertness and, when he trusted to the mangnanimity of Hitler by surrendering to him, it was thought he had lost all sense. Yet today French people look to him to protect their nation and to assist in bringing it through the present difficult time with honor. He and his colleagues have been able so far to hold back the Germans from using the French army and navy against the British and, by holding the army and navy as a threat, has prevented the Germans from wholly ruining his country. How long he will be able to continue to hold out no one knows.

Yes, it's not just another tobacco-it's Ogden's! And old timers, who have been rolling-their-own for a quarter of a century, know that "Ogden's" means a distinctive blend of choicer, riper tobaccos. This blending gives Ogden's a flavour all its own, smoother, more satisfying. Try it once. Then you'll always roll 'em with Ogden's.
