FRENCH PROUD OF THEIR SHIPS Declare that their Trans-Atlantic Liners are Safer and Stronger than British Built Boats - Carry More Life Saving Gear.

Paris, April 30—The greatest surprise is expressed in French shipping circles at the inadequate regulations of the British Board of Trade as regards precautions against the loss of life. It is pointed out that that the French law on this point is more stringent than that of any other country. Every French liner must carry enough boats to insure accommodation for every soul on board. The navigation inspectors of the Ministry of the Marine pay frequent visits to the large liners to see that the regulations touching the state and equipment of the boats are duly observed. A life-saving drill once a week is compulsory on all French passenger steamers, and at least twice a year all lifeboats must be lowered to the water. Each of these must bear the name of the vessel, her port, and the number of passengers she can hold, and be stocked with five and one-half pounds of biscuits and five gallons of water per passenger. These provisions must be kept in air tight barrels and be renewed once a fortnight. Beyond these necessities and equipment the boats must be empty. La France, the newest and largest French transatlantic steamer, which is about due in New York on her maiden trip, has a tonnage of 25,000, and a capacity for 1910 passengers. For these, sixteen lifeboats, each accommodating 52 persons, and a large number of smaller boats are provided. It is pointed out by shipping men here that English naval constructors use much thinner metal plates for the skin of the vessels than the French. The French liners, it is said, are built with plates not less than twenty millimeters thick, and it is recalled that the Campagnie Trans Atlantique's boat Niagara, collided with a block of ice in the same spot as the Titanic a few days ago, and emerged from the accident without disastrous consequences.

B. C. TRADE THIS YEAR Steady Increase in Prosperity is Shown.

The Montreal Herald says: "Vancouver and Victoria reports say a brisk trade is moving at these points, and throughout the province. The volume of general trade shows a good increase over that of last year, as is to be expected in view of the rapid development of the country and the steady increase in population. General merchandise is moving freely. Shipments to the interior and up coast points are heavy. Payments are, on the whole, very satisfactory. The shipping trade at these ports has been active and the volume of traffic through Vancouver shows steady increase. Values of commodities are generally steady to firm."

LATEST TALL STORY TOLD Doctor Over Hundred Miles Away Amputated Man's Foot—He Directed Operations by Wireless Telegraph.

New Orleans, May 1.—How a laborer on Swan Island, a lonely wireless station in the Gulf, suffered a crushed foot; how the wireless operator communicated with a ship 420 miles away, raised the surgeon and got him to explain the proper way to amputate; then how the operator performed the operation, is a story told by the manager of a big shipping firm. On Swan Island is a wireless station, one of the links in the chain in the tropics. When a laborer's foot was hurt in a tram car accident, the operator concluded that an operation was imperative. There were no medical books at hand, and no one at the station had ever hacked a limb from a fellow being. The operator called a fellow craftsman on a ship passing 420 miles below, in the Caribbean Sea. The situation was explained to the ship's surgeon and detail by detail he explained just how to amputate the foot. After the arteries had been tied and the wound dressed the patient recovered his senses and insisted on pressing at the wireless key to express his thanks. At last accounts he was getting well.
