Probe Showed Inflated Coat Looked Like Body When Aviatrix Died

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July Miss Molly Owens is sailing this 15: (CP)-An inflated greatcoat afternoon on the Catala for a trip held the secret of the mysterious 'passenger' Amy Johnson was reported to be flying when she parachuted to her death in the Thames this afternoon on the Catala for a Estuary last January.

Eyewitnesses who saw Miss Johnson sink below the choppy waters Forbes Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. of the estuary reported they had James L. Lee, is sailing this afterseen what they though was the body of a man in the water near the crashed plane.

Captain Norman Edgar, chief liaison officer of the Air Transport Auxiliary, for which the noted long-distance aviatrix flew, cleared up the mystery in an interview with the Canadian Press, declaring it had been proved beyond al doubt that Miss Johnson was alone in her plane when she baled out.
