

Ministers Meet School Principal

Question Of Religious Education Discussed At Gathering Yesterday

The Prince Rupert Ministerial Association was in session yesterday with W. W. C. O'Neill, principal of Booth Memorial High School to go into the possibilities of religious education in connection with school work. After discussion it was found that this could not be carried out in the regular curriculum but that students who of their own volition wished to take it up in an extra-curricular way might obtain credits by doing so. Rev. J. A. Donnell, who recently arrived in the city to take over the ministry of First United Church, brought up the subject of having a church directory prepared and posted in hotels and other points of vantage for the benefit of transient visitors to the city. It was left to Mr. Donnell to proceed further with this matter. Rev. E. E. Brandt, president of the Association, was in the chair at yesterday's meeting.

Vancouver Island was circumnavigated by Captain George Vancouver in 1792.

FEET ARE GROWING

Shoe Spanners Find Women's Average Bigger After Ten Years Of Less Worry About Matter

By Adelaide Kerr
NEW YORK, August 25:—Shoe men say women are getting bigger feet as a result of their new freedom.

Managers of shoe shops say they "sell plenty of women's shoes in sizes 10 and 11" and that 30 to 60 percent of their business is done in size eight and above. The Institute of Human Art has awarded dancer Vera Zorina a trophy for the "fairest feet in all the land." Her shoe size is 6b, length of foot 9 1/4 inches, width 3 1/4 inches. In the pre-Garbo days most women regarded size eight as something to be kept as a family secret. Today, some of the managers say, they even sell some 12's and 13's, in narrow lasts running from A to quadruple A. Most of the managers think this increase in foot size is a result of women's 20th century athletics and independence — an independence which prompted them to rebel against pinched and hurting feet, and to demand shoe comfort and proper fit.

Average Size 7A-B
"Ten years ago our average size was 5b to 6a," says a manager of a Fifth Avenue shoe shop. "Today it is 7a-b. We sell plenty of 10's and 11's to the younger generation—girls of 16-20. I've checked up on their height and lots of them are from five feet nine to six feet one or two inches. Girls certainly seem to be getting taller, so it's not strange if they have larger feet."

"It used to be that a woman who wore an eight slipped into the shop and whispered her size to the salesman. But these girls call out size 11 even if there are 50 people in the store. "What's behind this increase in size? More spinach and athletics, I think. Girls know how to eat for vitamins nowadays, and they are more active. They're not masculine, but they're certainly a long way from the clinging vine. That girl seems to be gone for good."

Aching Feet Out
Women just won't put up with pinched and aching feet, other managers told me. They demand shoes which are comfortable, and lots of them insist on Cuban heels. "There's a lot to be said for this modern girl who wears a bigger shoe," one of them said. "She doesn't have wrinkles in her face or notches in her temper from tight shoes. She's a lot more cheerful. When she comes to buy she knows just what she wants and if we have it she makes her selection in short order."

George J. Fitzgerald, head of a Brooklyn firm which specializes in fitting for comfort, says that behind the demand of some girls for a bigger shoe is "The Spirit of '76 rebellion."

Shoe Needs Vary
"They just refuse to be punished by hurting feet," he says. "There are as many different kinds of feet as there are faces. Flexible feet, rigid feet, narrow and wide feet. Because you wear a size seven in one kind of shoe it doesn't follow that you wear the same size in another, for the inside measurements may be quite different. In fitting shoes correctly the wearer's height, weight and general bone structure—as well as the size and type of her feet—must be taken into consideration. "Modern women know at least some of these facts. Their lives have changed; they have to travel fast and so they insist on shoes which will enable them to keep up the pace."

Pioneer Police Officer Moving

Constable Andrew Grant Transferred From Smithers To Duncan

Constable Andrew Grant of Smithers is being transferred from there to Duncan. Constable Grant has been in the provincial police service in the north for many years, having been on the city force here for some time and later at Hazelton. He and his wife and family are well known and popular and many friends will regret they are leaving the north.
