RUSSIANS AND POLES

Sikorski said the pact is based on honorable conditions and is expected to be signed shortly.

LITTLE ACTION IN WEST
LONDON—There was little action on the western European front during the night. The air ministry reports that small German forces caused slight damage and some casualties at three points in eastern England. No British attacks seem to have been made apparently because of continued bad weather over the continent.

BRITAIN AND FINLAND
LONDON—Great Britain soon may be at war with its old friend Finland. The British are understood to be considering whether a state of war exists in view of the Finnish declaration that Finland and Germany are co-allies. Finland yesterday broke relations with Britain, a move that probably will be followed by the freezing of Finnish credits in Britain.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY
ANKARA—Turkey soon will be assured that Russia has no designs on the Dardanelles. Authoritative sources say the Soviet now is preparing the note to Turkey. In London, diplomatic sources report that Britain informally raised the question of Russo-Turkish relations during conversations with Soviet officials. The British are said to have suggested that all concerned would benefit if Russia were to reassure the Turks.

NAVAL ENGAGEMENT
ROME—Another Mediterranean naval engagement is reported in today's Italian high command communique. The Fascist command says Italian torpedo boats on their way back from Friday night's attack on Malta ran into a light British naval formation. The communique claims one British destroyer was sunk against a loss of two Italian torpedo boats.

UNITED STATES NEAR WAR
LONDON—Prime Minister Winston Churchill says the United States is moving resolutely to the very verge of war.

RUSSO-GERMAN ROUND-UP
The Russians still seem to be holding the German army at bay along most of the 1800-mile front. At some points, according to Soviet reports, the Red troops are on the offensive. The afternoon Moscow communique reports fighting continued throughout the night in the same sectors around Nevel, Smolensk and Zhitomir. There is only one near victory claimed from Germany. The German high command says that the greater part of the Soviet forces trapped by the German break near Smolensk now have been smashed. Informed German quarters claim that Rumanian troops on the Bessarabian front have captured Akkerman, 28 miles southwest of the Soviet Black Sea port of Odessa. However, most German military spokesmen are expelling recent high command statements and dwelling on the difficulties of the weather and the terrain and they again pay tribute to the tenacious Russian resistance.

LONDON, July 30: (CP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today that only the future could tell if Japan will keep her promises to respect the sovereignty and integrity of French Indo-China. Meanwhile at Tokyo Premier Konoye declared that Japan was resolved on "swift and determined execution of her national policies." The Japanese press became increasingly critical of British and United States activities and described the Netherlands-East Indies as an Anglo-American tool.
