VARSITY SOLDIERS KEEP FIT

Canadian universities have played an important part in the national war effort since the start of the conflict in training their students to become fit army men. Units of the Canadian Officers Training Corps have increased their activities and have been a rich source of officer timber for the Canadian services. Reserve battalions have also been organized to give university students basic training. McGill University's contribution is typical. This photo shows members of the M.R.T.B. (McGill Reserve Training Battalion) during a P.T. session.

Glance-Back at All - Canadian Football Current Season Shows Game Going Out.

By SYDNEY GRUSON Canadian Press Staff Writer TORONTO, Dec. 10: (9) - The chances are against senior football being played in Canada next year because of the war, but 1941 was the wind-up for the durto encourage women in factories tensively than any other kind of ation the blaze of glory at the finish will reflect the season favorably for years to come.

No definite decisions have been made yet for 1942 but it seems certain the Western Inter-previncial Rugby Football Union will close down and the situation in the ea will be clarified only by turn of events in the war. Foctball officials, however, are not overly optimistic of operating senior senior leagues in the east.

If they do manage to bring the Big Four (Eastern Inter - Provincial) out for another year, it's probable the national final will be retained, for the executive of the Winnipeg Blue Bomber club, 1941 champions after the stirring 13-16 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders, plan to keep a team together and play exhibitions against American clubs until an eastern champion is declared.

Give and Take Rules

In review, the 1941 season provided some of Canadian football brightest moments, topped by the renewal of the east-west classic year's postponement because the drawn-out struggle over the sections' varying rules. A spirit of start. conciliation on both side led to adoption of a standard code-with

Bombers and Rough Riders together in a final before 20,000 fans then tried the goldfish and imthat left strong men weak and mediately landed a large bass. weak men in a state of collapse as the western champions overcame Ottawa's early lead, withstood the Riders' late surge and George (Boom Boom) Fraser, Ottawa placement - kicking specialists. made his classic miss from 18 yards with what would have been the tying field goal. The Bombers rode to the final over Regina Rough Riders, a young home-brew club that took the first game of the western final from the favored Winnipeggers but lost the next two. Edmonton had dropped out of the western schedule and Vanccuver was brought in as a replacement, but the old rivals from Winnipeg and Regina dominated the season.

Good Old-Timers The old stars were still the mailcarriers for the Bombers. Fritz Hanson came back in remarkable fashion to pace the Bombers, first to the western crown and then to the national title with a performance that reminded the fans of his palmy aftermoon in Hamilton six years ago. Then Hanson practically whipped Hamilton Tigers single-handed to give Bombers their first national championship.

In the east Riders took the eastern title by eliminating Hamfiton Wildcats, champions of the senior Ontario union. When Toronto Balmy Beach withdrew from the Ontario Rugby Football Union to replace the Tigers in a renovated Big Four, it appeared as if the O.R.F.U. was doomed. But Toronto Oakwoods, the Wildcats and Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers were put together to form a league in STANLEYW. COL

They went on to give Riders tough opposition in the eastern! final, losing 7-3. A week before, Ottawa had overcome an 8point lead Toronto Argonauts gained in the first game of the total-points series for the Big Four crown. The second game of that round, won by Riders 10-1 after they lost the opener 16-8, was rivalled only by the national final for excitement.

Eastern Star

The player of the year in the east was Tony (Golden Boy) Golab of Ottawa's backfield, a triplethreat star who was awarded the Jeff Memorial trophy as the Big Four's outstanding man.

Balmy Beach won only its two games against Montreal's hapless Bulldogs but Beaches had to play their first three games without their star quarterback, Bobby Porter, who had been ruled ineligible because he played professional baseball. There were many, even at the season's close, who insisted the whole eastern picture would have change dhad Porter been allowed to play from the

Let's make Christmas as cheerful as we can. Use plenty of light. We have coloured lights for outdoor decoration and for the Christmas tree indoors and don't forget the importance of good lighting all over the house. Be fair to your eyes, don't knit, read, sew or study in a dim light. Very often the use of a higher wattage bulb in your present lamps or fixtures will give you the light you need. Without obligation you may have the advice of men trained in the science of better lighting. Ask us.
